That Street Duel Last Saturday Night.

Mr. Stewart Says That He Was "Held Up."

A Different Story Told by Eye-Witnesses.

Unequivocal Statements Which Show That There Was a Woman in It, and a Very Gritty Woman at That—A Ramble in the Park.

The shooting scrape on the corner of Fifth and Main streets night before last was the main topic of conversation in police circles yesterday, and many were the conjectures as to who the parties engaged in the fracas are. Early yesterday morning L. N. Stewart, a young man who keeps a fruit stand at No. 3 East First street, and has his residence at 430 South Main street, near the place of the shooting, appeared at the police station and informed Chief Skinner that a man "stood" him up on the corner of Fifth and Main streets at 12 o'clock Saturday night, and that they exchanged three or four shots each. On being questioned he said he was at his fruit stand until a late hour, and when he started home he put his cash, amounting to $150, in his pocket, and started for home. He walked quietly to Fifth street and was about to pass the corner, when a man popped up from behind a hedge and ordered him to throw up his hands. He made up his mind in a second to die in the defense of his money, so he drew his pistol, and they both fired at about the same time. He thought at first that he had been struck in the face, and he was so dizzy that he could hardly see to shoot, but he kept blazing away until he had discharged three shots. The robber fired three shots point blank at Stewart, but none of them came near his person, except the first one, which grazed his face and left a number of powder marks. The robber then started to run and skipped down Fifth street, toward Spring, as fast as his legs could carry him, and Stewart, who saw two other men standing by whom he took for the robber's pals, lit out and was soon safe in his own house. He was closely questioned as to why he did not report at the police station or notify the officers, who were on the spot five minutes after the first shot was fired, but all that could be gotten out of him was that he did not know how badly he was wounded and he wanted to get home. Mr. Stewart stated that he found his wife waiting for him when he arrived at home. He described the robber as a tall, slim man, and he is positive that there was no woman in sight when the shooting occurred. He saw only two persons besides the would-be robber, and he describes them as being two hard-looking cases, who stood about half way down the block, and from the manner in which they watched the performance, he was confident that they were pals of the bad robber, who wanted his hard-earned coin or his heart's blood.

OTHER STORIES.

There are several other stories in connection with this strange affair which are being investigated by the police detectives. One is to the effect that a woman was in the scrape. At 10 o'clock she and a well-known young society blood were strolling about the Sixth-street Park when Officer Lemon walked suddenly upon them.

"Don't look at this lady," said the blood, pushing Lemon's face away with his open hand. "She is a respectable married woman and you must not look at her."

The officer then left them to their love-making and thought nothing more of the affair until the shooting occurred, when the description given him of the young woman who was with one of the men who took a hand in the shooting answered exactly to the park couple. Officer Hawthorn saw them leave the park shortly before the shooting, and as they passed him the woman covered her face with a handkerchief.

Homer Katz and James Rowan were eye-witnesses to the shooting affair and tell a straight story. They were walking up Main street, and when they neared Fifth they noticed a lady and gentleman just ahead of them, walking slowly towards them. The electric light was shining brightly, and the two gentlemen could plainly see what was going on. Right behind the couple a negro was walking in the same direction with the couple. When they came within about ten feet of each other a man, who was a stranger to Katz and Rowan, skipped lightly across Main street, and when he got within a few feet of the lady and gentleman he dropped in a crouching position and, without uttering a word, he began to fire point blank at the couple. The young man pushed his female companion behind a large pepper tree that stood on the edge of the sidewalk, and, throwing himself against the tree, he pulled his pistol and began to fire at the crouching man in the street. As soon as the woman's companion opened fire on the assaulting party that individual started across Fifth street. He ran down Fifth a little distance, when he returned and hastily entered a house on Main street.

The woman, who was gritty to the end, held a hurried consultation with her companion, when she walked hurriedly up Main street, towards the business portion of town, and her companion ran out Fifth towards the river.

Rowan and Katz thought at first that they would stand close to the parties and see the duel out, but two or three bullets plowed up the ground at their feet, so they moved a few steps towards Sixth street, keeping all the time in plain view of the battle-field. From the mysterious way in which they speak of the young blood, it is almost certain that the park officers know him. Rowan and Katz say the electric light was so bright that they could see every move of the duelists.

As was mentioned in yesterday's TIMES, one of the shooters fired into a hackman's house, on the east side of Main street, and came very near shooting his wife, who stood only a moment before against the wall where the bullet buried itself, and Rowan and Katz had a very narrow escape.

The case is one that demands a close investigation, for, be the lover-woman story true, or Mr. Stewart's, the person who caused the shooting, which greatly endangered the lives of several innocent people, should be brought to justice.

FARM AND RANGE.

GAS FOR SCALE BUGS.

Bulletin of the University of California.

BERKELEY, June 18.—Some time ago the Agricultural Department was requested by Messrs. A. B. and A. S. Chapman, L. H. Titus and J. C. Newton, prominent orange-growers of Los Angeles county, to conduct experiments with the view of determining the efficacy of certain gases as insecticides, with special reference to the white scale, Icerya Purchasi. The following is a summary of results, of which a full report will be published hereafter.

The use of gases for this purpose has been long contemplated, and various appliances have been suggested for the ready application of any efficacious gas. The ease with which gas penetrates to all parts of the tree naturally suggests its use as preferable to washes, which, at best, leave many parts of the foliage and infested branches untouched, even when sprayed with the greatest care. In order that the gas may be an efficient insecticide, it must be so poisonous that even when applied in small quantities it produces fatal results; for in the application the air confined in the tent covering the tree dilutes the gas to a great extent. Again, the gas must be capable of being generated quickly in sufficient volume. The record below shows that only one of the gases employed fulfilled these conditions to a satisfactory extent. Preliminary experiments with some others having shown their unfitness for the purpose, either on account of expense, or because of injury to the foliage, or imperfect action on the insects, their study was not pursued further.

APPLIANCES FOR APPLICATION.

The tent for covering the tree is made of heavy bed-ticking, thoroughly oiled with linseed oil. This cloth serves the purpose best, as it is very closely woven, is pliable and easily folded.

The support of the tent, devised by Mr. Titus, is a very ingeniously contrived scaffolding mounted on wheels, which serve to move it from one tree to the other. Its dimensions are 26 feet high, with a base 20x20 feet. Its upper part is 20x12, and carries upon the top a roller made of galvanized iron (6 inches in diameter and 12 feet long), upon which the tent is rolled when taken from the tree. Side guy ropes are attached to the bottom of the tent and run through pulleys at the upper corners of the scaffold. They are used to open the tent when it is to be dropped over the tree, and to fold it up when it is removed. The lightness of the apparatus allows of its being easily removed by two men, who operate the whole. If necessary, two or more tents can be handled by the same scaffolding, one tent being left over the tree while the scaffolding is moved to the next.

In adjusting the tent, the bottom is placed on the ground about three feet from the tree and covered with earth. This brings the gas to bear upon the base of the tree and the surrounding soil.

The generator in which the gases were produced consists of a heavy sheet-iron cylinder, 11 inches in diameter and 13 inches high. The bottom rests on a plank, and to the top is fitted a movable cover suspended in a frame by a bench-screw. Into the cover are fitted two pieces of gaspipe—one for the exit of the gas toward the tent, and the other, connected with a pump, carries the gas which returns from the tent. Two small reservoirs are also inserted in the cover; in these are contained the solutions which are to flow into the generator for the production of the gas.

In order to establish circulation and to force the gas into the tent, a pump is used, which also serves to exhaust the gas from the upper part of the tent and to force it again through the generator. It is proposed to replace the pump by a small fan-blower, which is much more expeditious than the common pump which was used.

THE GASES EXPERIMENTED WITH.

Among the gases used were chlorine, sulphuretted hydrogen, ammonia, carbon bisulphide, carbon monoxide, carbonic acid, hodrocyanic acid and barbolic acid vaporized by heat.

Chlorine.—Some preliminary experiments were made in small vessels into which this gas had been introduced. some infested branches were allowed to remain in them for times varying from 5 to 35 minutes, without any noticeable effect being produced on the insect. Atmospheres more strongly saturated with the gas proved fatal to the insect in a short time. In other treatments extending over 18 hours, with less saturated atmospheres, only a small percentage of the insects were killed. No decided effects were noticeable on the foliage unless the gas was very concentrated.

Carbon Bisulphide.—A lime tree, 12 feet in diameter of top, was treated with the vapor of 2½ pounds of sulphide of carbon for 45 minutes. At the end of this time the insects were lively, and during the treatment had crawled up and collected around a rope surrounding the tree, at the point where the gas was being injected from the hose. It proved that the gas thus used injures neither the insects nor the foliage. It is upon record, however, that in cases where the vapor had not been thoroughly diffused, but was allowed to flow down from an open vessel placed in the top of the tent, serious injury was done to the foliage at points where the undiluted vapor flowed down.

Sulphuretted Hydrogen.—Several treatments with this gas were made on a small scale, the application lasting from 5 to 35 minutes. The effects produced either with diluted or concentrated gas were similar to those produced by chlorine, except that even the concentrated sulphuretted hydrogen did not injuriously affect the foliage. An experiment in which a whole tree was treated in the tent for 45 minutes, with quite concentrated sulphuretted hydrogen gas, showed clearly that the effect was far from being satisfactory; the insects for the moment were stupefied, but in the course of an hour and a half the majority of them were again moving about.

Ammonia.—The vapor from one pound and a half of strong ammonia water was applied to an 11-foot lime tree for 30 minutes. The results were disastrous to the foliage; the leaves were all scalded, and in a few days all dropped from the tree, and even the newer growth of wood was injured. The insecs, however, were not perceptibly harmed.

Carbon Monoxide.—Very strong hopes have been entertained by many for the successful application of this gas. Its apparent cheapness and easy production, when the necessary plant is once erected, would recommend it. Unfortunately our experiments show that it is not sufficiently effective to warrant its use. The gas was obtained by forcing air through a small furnace filled with red-hot charcoal, care being taken to cool and to measure the gas before applying it. No appreciable effect was noticeable after forty minutes. In a duplicate experiment, in which the charcoal was more strongly ignited and continuously introduced into the barrel for thirty minutes, only slightly better results were obtained.

Oxalic Acid.—It was thought that the production of carbon monoxide by decomposition of oxalic acid by heat might be substituted for the previous method of generating this gas. One-quarter of a pound of oxalic acid was ignited, and the gases applied in a manner similar to that of the preceding experiment. Neither the insects nor the foliage were harmed in the least. This experiment has incidentally shown that the vapor of formic and oxalic acids, also produced during the heating of the latter, is likewise ineffective.

Carbolic Acid.—It had been suggested that carbolic acid vaporized by heat would prove fatal to the insect. A dose of half a pound of liquid acid was volatilized in the furnace, and the vapor blown in the vessel containing the infected branch. At the end of twenty minutes all the old insects were still alive, and some of the young ones, just molted, were moving about. An hour later the foliage appeared as if scalded.

Hydrocyanic Acid.—It was only with hydrocyanic, or prussic acid (generated by the action of sulphuric acid on potassium cyanide), that sufficiently fatal effects were secured to warrant a more thorough determination of the time of exposure and quantities of material which would produce the best results. Numerous experiments were carried on for this purpose, and it was shown that even small amounts were effective. It was also shown that even in these small quantities an injurious effect upon the foliage was produced. In the beginning of the experiments "mining cyanide" of potassium was used. It is a very impure material; and contains, along with the cyanide, a considerable amount of carbonate of potassium. For this reason many of the first treatments were practically ineffective.

Later treatments with pure cyanide were more successful in destroying the insects, but the foliage was proportionally injured. Treatments varying in dose from 4 to 12 ounces of cyanide, and in time from 15 to 60 minutes, showed that the effect produced on the foliage by longer treatment was not proportionally greater than that produced by short treatment. Neither was the effect of longer treatments proportionately more fatal to the insects. It was thus clearly shown that the gas mixture should be of considerable strength in order to insure rapid action.

The effect of the gas was so disastrous to the foliage that it became necessary to find some means of remedying this trouble. This was sought in applying a second gas which might preserve the foliage. Sulphuretted hydrogen was therefore injected into the tent, together with the cyanide gas, both from the same generator; a portion of the sulphuretted hydrogen being introduced before the cyanide was generated. It was found that the insects appeared stupefied when the tent was raised, but large numbers revived in a few hours. The effect of the cyanide seemed therefore to have been decreased by the sulphuretted hydrogen. The foliage was not preserved, although not so badly affected as by treatments with cyanide alone.

Carbonic acid gas was next tried. Trees were treated with larger doses of cyanide than heretofore used, and the carbonic acid from 1½ pounds of carbonate of soda was at the same time introduced with these doses. The insects were killed and the foliage of a 12-foot tree remained unharmed, while that of a 14-foot tree with the same amount of carbonic acid was slightly injured. Thus it was shown that it would require 1½ pounds of bicarbonate of soda to preserve tree-tops 12 feet in diameter, and that with this protection the deadly cyanide could be successfully used.

The regulation of the doses for the different sized trees so as to produce uniform treatments is calculated on the basis of the results of the experiments which determined the amount of each constituent for a 12-foot tree. The following table indicates the amounts for trees of different dimensions of top, based upon the rates of cubical contents:

Size of Tree. feet.	Cyanide of Potassium. fluid ozs.	Bi-Carbonate of Soda. pounds.	Sulphuric Acid, fluid ozs.
4	.7	.05	.4
5	1.6	.11	.3
6	2.5	.20	1.3
7	4.0	.29	2.1
8	6.0	.44	3.1
9	8.5	.63	4.5
10	11.5	.87	6.2
11	15.5	1.14	8.2
12	20.0	1.50	11.6
13	25.4	1.90	13.5
14	31.6	2.50	16.6
15	39.2	2.92	20.7
16	47.5	3.55	25.2
17	57.5	4.23	30.1
18	67.7	5.05	35.8
19	70.9	5.93	42.1
20	90.5	6.93	49.2

In order to apply the doses more easily they are prepared so that the required amounts of each ingredient can be directly measured. The cyanite solution is prepared by dissolving say 10 pounds of the solid salt in about 2½ gallons of water, warmed nearly to the boiling point, stirring at intervals, cooling, and then diluting to 2½ gallons. This solution will contain about 1 ounce of cyanide of potassium to 2½ fluid ounces of the liquid.

The bicarbonate of soda is pulverized finely and measured off in a vessel marked, so as to designate pounds and fractions of a pound of the solid material. It is then placed in the generator and the dose of cyanide mixed with it, and, if necessary, a little water added to make into a thin paste. After adding the measured dose of sulphuric acid, the pump is worked slowly at first, and more rapidly after the gas has passed into the tent. The time for each treatment must be determined by future experiments; fifteen minutes seemed to be quite sufficient when the cyanide alone was used, but it may be desirable to extend the treatment to thirty minutes when the foliage is protected by the carbonic acid gas.

It is advisable that the treatments should follow cultivation after about four days, so that all weeds and places where the insect may find lodgment would be destroyed. The insect will then be on or very near the tree; the fitting of the tent to the ground is thus also much easier.

The eggs of the insect remained apparently uninjured, wherever protected by the woolly covering. A second treatment, to destroy such as may afterward hatch, will, therefore, be necessary.

It must not be expected that these experiments definitely settle the mode of operation and the size of the doses to be used. They are merely suggestive of a general plan, which can be so perfected in the future that the application of this remedy to other kinds of trees and insects must be attended with good results. It simply remains for the ingenious cultivator to devise the necessary appliances for its use, on a small scale, on all sorts of fruit trees, shrubs and plants.

It must not be forgotten that extreme care in the handling both of this deadly gas and of the cyanide itself is necessary. To inhale the one, or to taste or touch a wound with the other, may lead to serious consequences.

ACTION OF THE LOS ANGELES SUPERVISORS.

Just after the foregoing was written, the following letter was received from A. Scott Chapman, of San Gabriel, member of the California State Board of Horticulture:

SAN GABRIEL, June 8, 1887.

F. W. Morse, University of California—DEAR SIR: The Board of Horticulture of Los Angeles county have been out to examine the work done by you at Mr. Titus's place, and have pronounced it the best "killing" that they have ever seen.

They asked my father (Mr. A. B. Chapman) to go before the Board of Supervisors and make a statement of your work. He went before the board and explained things to them. They then agreed to pay all expenses incurred by him and Mr. Titus; they further agreed to ask you to come down again and carry your plan to completion, agreeing to pay all your expenses and salary, the same as was done by Mr. Titus and my father during your previous visit. Very respectfully yours,

A. SCOTT CHAPMAN.

LAND FRAUDS.

ROSS & COTTON,
35 South Spring Street

Are locating many settlers and intending settlers, under the Public land laws, on fine, level GOVERNMENT LAND, with deep, rich soil, plenty of fuel and near railroad. With a Surveyor on the ground, we resurvey these lands and find the old Government Stakes. We make railroad excursion to these lands, taking provisions, tents, etc., stay over night, and Point Out the Corners. We have full, accurate maps, plats, etc., corrected from the United States Land Office Records the last day before starting. Our excursions do not return the same day of starting; for the reason that no man can show Government Stakes and pass over these lands in so short a time. We do not locate parties on land numbers covering lands many miles away from lands shown, but, in every instance, we guarantee the entries to be EXACTLY the same lands shown. Our next EXCURSION will leave THURSDAY, JUNE 23, 1887, at 7 a.m.
All wishing to go must arrange with us by not later than Wednesday morning. We challenge the closest investigation and guarantee satisfaction. ROSS & COTTON,

HOTEL KEEPERS, ATTENTION!

FOR SALE—ONE OF THE BEST BARGAINS IN THE STATE,

Fine Summer Resort

ON A TRANSCONTINENTAL LINE OF RAILWAY, ABOUT FORTY MILES FROM LOS ANGELES. ALTITUDE ABOUT 1800 FEET. ABOUT 600 ACRES OF LAND, WITH ABUNDANT AND NEVER-FAILING WATER SUPPLY. TITLE TO BOTH LAND AND WATER PERFECT.

A RAILROAD STATION AND HOTEL UPON THE PLACE,

WITH POSTOFFICE AND EXPRESS, TELEGRAPH AND TICKET OFFICES NEXT DOOR IN THE HOTEL, WHICH IS SURROUNDED BY ONE OF THE FINEST FLOWER GARDENS IN THE STATE. A GOOD SCHOOL NEAR BY ON THE PROPERTY. ALSO EIGHT

PURE WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS,

Pronounced by those who have tasted them as the best they have seen or known. A resident for seventeen years pronounces the climate the finest he has ever found, and says almost everything except too-far-gone consumption gets cured there entirely.

Twenty-five acres in bearing orchard of Oranges, Lemons, Limes, Figs, Prunes, Plums, Cherries, Apricots, Nectarines, Quinces, Pomegranates, Peaches, Pears, Apples, all healthy and free from scale.

Twenty-five acres in Muscat Grapes, some six years old. Horses, Cattle, Hay Wagons, Chickens and Outhouses. Owner, who wishes to retire, would subdivide the place. Any one liking hotel life can probably make more money than at a coast resort. Price, $25,000. Terms—One-half cash, balance one two and three years, at 8 per cent.

FOR SALE:

1700 acres, twelve miles from San Bernardino, with an abundance of mountain water. Price, $50 per acre; terms easy. Southern Pacific Railroad runs near by.

One of the most beautiful locations for a town site in this country; 1300 acres four miles from Puente, on the Southern Pacific Railroad. Has abundant water right. Good location for a town. Price, $800,000.

3,000 acres in Kern county, on railroad; 1000 acres farming land; 300 acres moist; 1200 acres fenced; springs on the place, of easy development, will furnish an abundant supply of water. Price, $30 per acre.

16,000-acre Stock Ranch, eight miles from the coast. Live oak and other wood enough on it to pay for it. Price, $8 per acre.

40,000 acres of the finest kind of farming land, artesian water on the place, in Kern and Tulare counties. Price, $10 per acre.

2500 acres in Kern county, on railroad. Dry land. Townsite on it. Price, $5 per acre.

160 acres level land in Soledad Cañon, between Newhall and Soledad City; railroad land; has switch on section, with station to be erected. Price, $4000. cash.

160 acres in San Bernardino county, in Temescal Valley; independent water supply; 100 acres inclosed with rabbit-proof fence; in grapes, oranges, peaches, apricots, cherries and walnuts; 120 acres plow land; new house of four rooms and outbuildings. Price, $50 per acre, one-half cash, balance one year at 8 per cent. Eighty acres, unimproved, with separate water right, at $25 per acre, cash.

Eighty acres in the frostless foothill belt, at Cahuenga, twelve miles northwest of Los Angeles, nine miles north of Santa Monica, at the head of Cold Water Cañon. The altitude is 1200 feet above sea level, and free from frosts and heavy, cold fogs. About forty acres can be plowed; the balance can be planted with trees or vines. The soil is unequaled for fertility, as is proven by the luxuriant growth of corn, barley and vines. There are about ten acres of Muscat grapes in full bearing, now full of fruit. It is the best climate for persons with lung troubles in Southern California; is 400 feet higher than the Raymond Hotel and most other health resorts. It has one of the grandest views in Southern California, for a place that is easily accessible by carriage. Title perfect. Price, $5000.

6880 acres in Santa Inez Valley, Santa Barbara county; 1500 acres excellent, level land; soil rich, sandy loam; 2500 acres good vineyard land, sloping, fine pasture and timber land; the whole surrounded by living streams of water; springs all over the ranch; is fenced with a three-board and one-wire fence, posts eight feet apart; one-half of this land is good for olive-culture; upon the place are 800 bearing grape vines, twenty years old; 100 assorted fruit trees, thirty years old; three miles from railroad depot, two miles from post-office. Price, $20 per acre.

THE OLIVE LEAF.

Last Summer Issue of the Bright Little Sheet.

The special commencement edition of the Olive Leaf, published by the students of the Hanna College for young ladies, is just out, and reflects particular credit upon the bright girls who conduct it. The following interesting excerpts are taken from it:

MEMORY CONTEST.

In order to introduce variety into the fatiguing last week of examination, a memory contest was arranged for Friday p.m. The following lists were placed upon the blackboards of the study-hall on Wednesday:

1. The books of the Bible	66
2. The twelve major deities	12
3. The nine muses	9
4. The present rulers of Europe	16
5. The sovereigns of England from William the Conqueror to Victoria.	35
6. The Presidents of the United States.	23
Total	100

These lists were studied by the young ladies and the little girls during the intervals between examinations, and on Friday, at 1 o'clock, the blackboard lists were erased, and forty-six pupils—twenty-three under Miss May Newell, as captain, twenty-three under Miss Mary Chapin—stood up for the contest. Miss Chapin's side was victorious, seven remaining standing, against two on the other side. Of these nine, Miss Lola Noble, Miss Gertrude McEwen, Miss Olive Stratton, Miss Margaret Anderson, recited the lists consecutively without a single mistake. Miss Mary Chapin, Miss Julia Crawford, Miss Neita Sweet, Miss Annie Henderson, and little Margaret Nevin made only an exchange of two names, or the omission of a single name.

COLLEGE PERSONALS.

Since the Olive Leaf is in a manner a journal of all affairs pertaining to the college, we think its readers may be interested in knowing the proposed whereabouts of our pupils and teachers in the coming vacation.

Miss Broadwell will remain on the Pacific coast, and will visit Santa Barbara, Catalina, and other points of interest.

Miss Hanna will be found at the college.

Miss Moodie will visit points on and near the coast.

Miss Roe will spend most of the summer at Santa Barbara, where her brother, Rev. E. P. Roe, is at present sojourning. She expects to devote her time to writing, and to gathering specimens of sea-life for her museum.

Miss Saxton will spend some time with relatives at Long Beach.

Miss Russel will spend a few weeks at Holton, Kan., under the instruction of Prof. Hailmann, of the Saratoga School of Methods, going from Holton to the National Educational Convention in Chicago, and afterward to her home in Jacksonville, Ill.

Miss Eckert will visit her home in Toledo, O., and study in the Boston School of Oratory during the summer term.

Misses M. Robertson, Tonner, F. Blackman, and Parcels, are registered for the city.

Miss George expects to summer at San Pedro.

The college will be represented at Long Beach by Misses Wells, Elwood, Boyle, Craig, Pitblado and Heffner. At Santa Monica by Misses Chapin, Patterson, H. Anderson, L. Germain and others.

Miss Cadwallader will spend her vacation at her home in Kansas.

Maud Reese says: "I am going back East, to Kansas and Ohio, and lots of other places. I don't know where I will stop."

As our "society reporter" was busy with closing examinations, etc., and the majority of the college public were not communicative as to their vacation plans, our summer register is far from complete.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Those Swill Tubs.

ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT SECONDS THE MOTION.

LOS ANGELES, June 18.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The author of the letter on "Garbage," published in your Sunday's issue, and signed "Sufferer," is a public benefactor, and deserves the thanks of the public for calling attention to a pestiferous and disgusting nuisance that demands immediate correction and abatement.

I wish to reinforce the statement made in that communication, that all swill and garbage should be removed late in the night when the streets are comparatively clear. The practice seems to be to wait until people have had their dinner, and go upon the streets for their evening walk or business, to encounter half a dozen swill carts gathering up the offensive refuse, often in a condition to poison the air for blocks away.

Let there be a reform, prompt and radical, in this practice.

JOHN MURRAY.

A Disastrous Boom.

"Has this town ever had a boom?" inquired a Boston man of a native who was loafing around a railroad depot in Nebraska.

"I should remark!" was the ready reply.

"Help things much?"

"Well, that's a question. We boomed in two groceries, a mile of sidewalk, three eastern widows, a drug store and five saloons in one year, and real estate went up 30 per cent."

"Then it must have helped."

"Yes, but we all got so infernally stuck up that me and another feller are the only two men in town what speaks to each other, and seventeen persons backslid from one church alone."

Just What "The Times" Told 'Em.

[Pasadena Star.]

There is a question which is crying out for attention in our midst, and unless the cries are heeded the usual kick which follows a lusty squall will be forthcoming. A police force which will be sure protection to property. The crowds which hang on our corners at night should be dispersed, and the scores of vagabonds who infest the city be compelled to leave or presented with a lock-it and chain.

San Juan-by-the Sea—Proposals for a Hotel.

The Pacific Land Improvement Company have platted and will soon place upon the market this bewitching seaside resort. Its beauty is known to Californians as exceeding anything on this coast. A magnificent hotel-site on the bluff, 125 feet above the sea, has been set apart. This will be deeded to the company or individual who will enter into a contract to construct, within four months, a hotel to cost not less than $50,000. The most costly building will secure the prize.

Address George H. Fullerton, president Pacific Land Improvement Company, room 21, Wilson block, Los Angeles, Cal.; or W. H. Holabird, general agent, Santa Ana, Cal.

Cheap, Choice, Near-by Acre Property.

The odd blocks in the Providencia ranch, located west of and near the town of Burbank, embracing forty acres each, will be placed on the market at the office of the company, No. 12 South Spring street, on Monday morning, June 6th, at $100 per acre, which is lower, considering the quality of land and its near-by location, than any land now offered in Los Angeles county.

24 S. Spring Street

Is the place to buy Norwalk lots.

Burbank improvements—Street railways and buildings to be built. By a resolution passed by the board of directors, a street railway is to be commenced on Olive avenue, and completed as soon as possible; also, ten more buildings, to be commenced and completed as soon as men and material can be provided—as the demand for buildings is far in excess of the supply.

GRAND DISTRIBUTION OF LOTS

—IN—

REECE'S ADDITION TO OCEANSIDE!

—TO TAKE PLACE—

MONDAY - - - - - - AUGUST 1, 1887.

230—LOTS—230 AT $150—EACH—$150.

WITH A CHANCE OF GETTING ONE HOUSE WORTH $1000, ONE HOUSE worth $800, one house worth $700, one house worth $600, and one of five houses worth $500 each.

REECE'S ADDITION adjoins the beautiful town of Oceanside on the northeast, one-half mile from the beach, just far enough to be protected from the cool winds off the ocean, but commanding a beautiful view of the water, making it the most delightful and desirable point for residence.

The addition lies three or four hundred yards east of the Oceanside Water Company's pipe-line, and the company agrees to put water upon the tract as soon as building has commenced.

OCEANSIDE is destined to be the Cape May and Long Branch of the Coast. It is situated on the California Southern Railroad, forty miles north of San Diego. Grading has already begun on the Santa Ana branch out of Oceanside, making this the junction of the two roads. It is also the terminus of the San Diego Central, and is on surveyed route of Southern Pacific, and is rapidly building up. There are now some six or seven hundred inhabitants and about fifty places of business.

There are now two good hotels in operation and a new one nearly completed, which will cost, without furniture, in the neighborhood of $30,000. Plans for a still larger and finer one are now in the hands of the architect. A large two-story brick, 100 feet square and two stories, is now under construction for a bank, on the corner of Hill street, and about five minutes' walk from the addition.

Work will begin on the wharf the coming week. It is to be 1500 feet long, with 35 feet of water at low tide. It is to cost $30,000, and all the stock is taken. A syndicate of Eastern capitalists has bought all the water at Monserratt and Pala, and are at work now piping the cool mountain water into the town of Oceanside, and the pipe-line will cross or pass very near to the addition.

Reece Bros. bind themselves to build the above-described houses ready to hand the key to the lucky owners in the distribution at the same time with the deed. For further particulars and maps inquire of Port Ballona.

The Future Harbor of Southern California.

THIS IS THE OCEAN TERMINUS OF THE CALIFORNIA CENTRAL RAILROAD, OF THE ATCHison, Topeka and Santa Fé system, who are under contract to lay five miles of sidetracks at this point by July 10, 1887—the shortest railroad line between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans. PORT BALLONA is situated on Santa Monica Bay, only thirty minutes' ride by rail from the City of Los Angeles, with trains to begin running every three hours in the day early in July. Property can be purchased now at a much lower figure than when railroads and steamships are brought together. PORT BALLONA has two main avenues, one 100 feet and one 80 feet wide, with all other streets 60 feet. Residence lots are 40x150, and business lots 25x100 and 25x150 feet. The residence property is at an elevation of from 50 to 75 feet above tide-water, thus affording a most magnificent view, extending from Point Duma to the San Jacinto Mountains, and from the San Bernardino Mountains to Santa Catalina Island in the Blue Pacific, and with a Beach unsurpassed on the Coast.

The Beautiful Lake of Ballona

Is one of the greatest features of the place, affording, at all times, a perfectly safe and pleasant place for Sailing and Boating of all kinds, and teeming with Fish and Water Fowl. There is also a never-failing Spring of Pure Sulphur Water, and both sulphur and salt water bath-houses are already in course of construction.

☞Water will be delivered in iron pipes in front of each lot under good pressure.

☞Lots are now on sale, and maps and all other information can be obtained from

The Ballona Harbor and Improvement Company,

Room 6, Office M. L. WICKS. Cor. Court and Main Streets.

THE AUCTION SALE, JUNE 14TH, was a great success. Over 150 purchasers are now interested in MARQUETTE. We now offer for private sale a number of lots at low prices. Advance JUNE 24TH.

MARQUETTE!!

THE MODEL CITY, 2 miles east of North Ontario, 300 ft. above Ontario townsite, 2640 ft. front on Santa Fe Railroad. An abundant supply of water piped at high pressure is there—not promised. A large hotel, livery stable, stores and residences are there—not promised. Sidewalks are made and a beautiful park-like square, with fountains, is there. The location of Marquette is unsurpassed for health and view. The soil a rich, warm loam. Edward Fraser, a man of wealth and culture, founder of Marquette, is devoting all his energies to the development of the new Model City. Marquette is to be the principal shipping point on the Santa Fe Railroad in the most productive fruit region. If men have doubled their money by investing in Monrovia or Azusa, they are going to quadruple it by purchasing lots in Marquette, which offers today THE BEST INVESTMENT IN REAL ESTATE. SPECIAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

Our Forthcoming Semi-annual Trade Number of "The Times."

On the 1st day of July (instead of June 30th, as heretofore announced), THE TIMES will issue its SEMI-ANNUAL TRADE NUMBER, a 16-page sheet, containing a complete busines review of the first half of the year 1887, embracing real estate, commercial, manufacturing, banking, railroad, shipping, postoffice and other statistics of progress in Los Angeles and Southern California.

Besides which there will be a large volume of telegraphic, local, editorial and miscellaneous matter, and, in addition, a history of THE TIMES and THE MIRROR, and an article descriptive of the new Times Building. The paper will be illustrated with cuts of the interior and exterior of the building, and with diagrams showing its arrangement. The several departments of the newspaper, job-printing and binding business will also be canvassed, so that a very fair idea of their interesting features may be obtained.

An edition of 15,000 copies is guaranteed. Here is an excellent opportunity for advertisers to "make a strike".

Those who wish to secure advertising pace in, or extra copies of, this especially desirable publication should communicate at once with the business office of THE TIMES. Rates will be given on application.

TIMES TELEPHONE.

People who have occasion to call up THE TIMES editorial rooms by telephone will please note the fact that the number has been changed to 674. The number of the counting-room remains the same as formerly—29.

WE are not disposed to doubt the piety of the Salvation Army people in this city, but, when they put up the sign, "Musicle Festivle," we doubt their orthography.

THE Oakland Enquirer declares that "interviewing Senator Fair is like the experience of the hog which tried to crawl through a fence where there was a crooked rail. Every time he got up he found himself still on the same side."

IF the transcontinental railway companies do not want to suffer a serious loss of travel, they had better give the authorities some vigorous encouragement for the capture of the train-robbers down in Texas. Another Jesse James gang seems to be forming.

A SPECIAL from San Diego reports thirteen cases of smallpox in Ensenada, Lower California, and that the steamer Carlos Pacheco will doubtless be quarantined when she comes into San Diego Harbor next. Between smuggling and other tribulations San Diego is having a hard time of it.

THE contract for the new pipe system in Riverside, amounting to $100,000, was let to John D. Hooker & Co., of this city, instead of to Lacy & Hooker, as stated by THE TIMES's Riverside correspondent yesterday. The firm was formerly Lacy & Hooker, but it dissolved about a year ago, and John D. Hooker & Co. now constitute a separate house. Work on the big contract will be commenced at once and it is to be completed by the 1st of December, this year. Fifty-six men are already employed for the pipe manufactore, and another shop is to be erected to enable twenty-five more to work. It is something of a plume in the bonnet of Los Angeles when her manufacturing concerns are able to take $100,000 contracts.

San Diego and the Australian Steamers.

San Diego has developed, of late, considerable enthusiasm over the prospect of an alliance between the Spreckels steamship line and the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway, whereby the Australian mails may be transshipped at that point. It is an important matter, and the San Diego people are abundantly justified in warming up to it. Such an arrangement would mean a good deal more than the mere transfer of so many hundred or thousand pouches of mail from steamer to car and from car to steamer. It would mean the operation of a line of steamers between Australia and the United States, with San Diego as the real objective point at this end. Although the steamers would undoubtedly continue up the coast to San Francisco, and the bulk of trade and traffic might at first continue with that city, still San Diego would enjoy the superior advantage of being the first port reached. A diversion would commence directly in favor of the first land and the shortest transcontinental route, and it is certain that, before many years, San Diego would take the cake, commercially speaking—at least so far as this line goes. Trade and travel invariably seek the shortest and cheapest route, regardless of sentiment, preëstablished channels and everything of the sort. San Francisco, possessing a virtual monopoly of the transcontinental railway service, owning the steamship lines and furnishing the principal market of the coast, might focus at her port the foreign commerce of this coast with haughty disregard of distances. But San Francisco, divested of her monopolies, must take her chances on the operation of the natural laws of trade.

The San Francisco papers, in discussing this subject, indulge in specious arguments which, to the credit of their good judgment, we will say they cannot believe in themselves. San Francisco's Japanese and Chinese trade is menaced by Port Moody, in British Columbia, and the Canadian Pacific Railway, on the north, just as her Australian trade is menaced by San Diego (or some other port) and competing railways on the south. Under the caption, "Not Much of a Shower," the San Francisco Bulletin canvassed these two diversions of trade a few days ago. It is amusing to note how thin a tune it whistles to keep its courage and the courage of San Francisco up. The Bulletin says:

> Negotiations are pending to induce the Australian steamers to call at San Diego. The calculation is that in connection with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé line much shorter time can be made to the East. By this route it is calculated that there will be a saving of 325 miles from Auckland to New York, though San Diego itself is only a few miles nearer to Australia than San Francisco on the direct trip, but it is at the same time 160 miles out of the way if a call is to be made at the Sandwich Islands. . . . Even with a detour to the Sandwich Islands San Diego, with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé, has the advantage. It is, therefore, the route for the mails and for those passengers to whom time is everything. But it is in San Francisco alone that the trade of the Australian colonies centers. It is here that they find a market for their coal, which is their chief article of export, and it is here most of the articles which they import are obtainable. The cheapest way to send Australian coal to San Francisco would not be to land it at San Diego. The prospective loss, therefore, in this direction, is that of the Australian mails, which are not fattening to anybody, and a few persons traveling for life or death. There is nothing to contemplate but a way station. We absolutely refuse to be cast down by these possibilities on either side of us. These trade diversions must go as lines of transportation are multiplied and settlement increases. A great many flourishing ports have grown up north and south of New York since the colonial days. But for all that the general course of trade and travel terminates there. Lines to Halifax and to Norfolk have not, to all appearances, retarded its growth.

It does not occur to the Bulletin, apparently, that Australia may, in time, find a market for her coal in San Diego, and may also be able to purchase there everything she requires from the United States. Great markets are built up to satisfy great demands; and when the demand is made in this progressive age, the supply does not lag far behind.

The position of Los Angeles as regards this interesting situation may be stated in three alternatives:

First—It is to our interest to capture that Australian and Sandwich Island trade ourselves, it possible. San Diego holds no patent on the idea, and there is no reason why we should not enter into a fair and open competition with her for this commerce. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fé Railway, which is San Diego's main reliance for securing this advantage, also has a direct line to Los Angeles, and will shortly bring ship and rail together at Ballona Harbor. Provided that harbor develops the advantages which are claimed for it, the Santa Fé people would find it "six of one and half a dozen of the other" whether they receive their Australian business here or in San Diego. In fact, on a strict computation of distance, the Los Angeles route would enjoy about fifty miles the advantage. If Ballona Harbor will not serve, then let us try for San Pedro. Why should not Los Angeles at least make an effort to secure this important traffic?

Second—If we cannot get Ballona or San Pedro named as the first port of landing, then let us strike to have one or the other named as the second. In the way of travel and trade we might make it an object for the Australian steamers to call there.

Third—If we can secure nothing from the Australian line for either one of our ports, then it is still to our advantage that the San Diego route be adopted. What helps San Diego helps the rest of Southern California. With a railroad and steamship line giving us direct communication with San Diego and the prospect of still another railway, we may enjoy very fair advantage from the Australian line, even with the third alternative. Certain it is that we don't get much good from San Francisco, and any diversion from that channel would measurably benefit us.

Apropos of this subject, we have received, in a private letter from San Diego, an "inside view," which is amusing as well as instructive. It shows how great oaks from little acorns grow, even in the sandy beach of Coronado. Our correspondent speaks of an interview which he had with H. L. Story, one of the owners of the Coronado Beach property, and reports that gentleman as saying that the San Diego Chamber of Commerce had no part in the hatching of this scheme. The citizens of San Diego had risen in arms against the extension of the Coronado wharf, shouting "monopoly." The suggestion of the possible coming of the Australian line, to land at that wharf, was at that time a flank movement, or "copper," so to speak. The self-interest of the town jumped the wharf monopoly matter in a moment, and went over to the Coronado people. Our correspondent says: "First, Babcock (of the Coronado company), started the Australian scheme; secondly, he stopped the mouths of malcontents by the timely announcement of it, and, thirdly, he went up to meet J. D. Spreckels, with a view of getting him and Buckley to come down and consider a bid from San Diego for the mails. If San Diego and the Santa Fé get in the best bid, they may get the 'plum,' and, in the words of the aforesaid Story, 'that's all there is in it.'"

The Los Angeles of the Hills.

A trip over the hills, beyond the terminus of the Second and Temple-street cable roads, affords convincing evidence that Los Angeles is growing in no one direction alone, but in all directions. Four years ago the outlook beyond and along these lines was lonely and uninviting. The hills were solitary. The life of the city was all below them. The idea of home-building upon these uplands was not given much consideration. The land could have been purchased at a few dollars an acre, and would have been looked upon as something of a white elephant upon the hands of the investor. There was no water distributed over the tract, there were no streets, and the wide extent of hills was not easily accessible.

But today there is no portion of Los Angeles that is more eloquent of what capital and enterprise combined will accomplish for a section than this same region of Los Angeles. The change has been marvelous. With the advent of the Los Angeles Improvement Company, and the improvements inaugurated by them, a new life seized upon these surrounding elevations. Rapid investments were made inland; building was pushed forward; streets were multiplied; waterpipes were laid in every direction; cottages and stately residences were built; colleges and hotels were provided; railway facilities extended; parks were laid out and made inviting; small business houses crept in, and now everywhere is busy life and the surging tide of speculative advance. Many a so-called city in California has not as many dwellings, nor as many general improvements as may now be found on the hilltops to the westward and northward of the older portion of the city.

And there is no break in the enterprise that is so active there. It is constantly projecting itself in new directions and extending the boundary of its operations. The new dummy line, just completed and beginning at the terminus of the Second-street cable road, brings all the outgoing territory within easy reach of the city, and it will not be long before suburban homes will be built along its entire length.

The new motor road, so soon to be completed and reaching out to the ostrich farm, makes readily accessible still another and not less desirable section, and it will not be many months before there will be a rapid drift of homeseekers along the entire extent of this new thoroughfare also. Land is now advancing, and a good field for investment is open.

In all these directions delightful home sites may be secured. The outlook towards the sea and mountains is captivating. There is a wide sweep of levels, of sloping uplands, of picturesque hills, a border of sea upon one hand, and of lofty Sierra heights upon the other. The improvements already inaugurated will pave the way to more extended ones. Rapid settlement of this section will naturally follow, as it has already begun, and some of the fairest portions of Los Angeles will yet be intrenched upon her hills. Far-sighted capitalists have not been slow to perceive this, and steadily in the future, no less than in the past, the city's march will be to the northward and the westward, no less than to the east and south. Los Angeles has ample room for the one hundred thousand people which a few years will see here. She can provide homes and lands for them all.

About Cremation.

The Herald is opposed to cremation. For that matter it has been opposed to nearly every other progressive mea sure that has ever been proposed here. It bitterly opposed high license or any other restraint on the then insolence of the saloons. It fought its bitterest against bonds for municipal improvements. But these and other steps of advancement have been made without regard to its fossil recalcitrancy. Probably cremation will thrive also in spite of the Herald, whose anger is evidently due to the fact that it was "scooped" on the news.

There is no need, however, for such spiteful misrepresentation as the Herald gives. Had it had a representative there, it would have known that there was nothing repulsive about the ceremony. As to the widely-loved lady whose body was first given to the purifying breath of the crematory, she was not dug up to experiment with. It had been for years her express desire, and that of her husband, that after death she should be cremated.

THE TIMES has lately published several letters embodying indignant protests against the swill-barrel nuisance, which obtains, to an unwonted extent, in Los Angeles. There seems to be a lack of concurrence or a general misunderstanding between the people who have garbage to dispose of and the garbage man. Barrels and boxes of offal, offensive alike to sight and smell, are placed on the edge of the sidewalk, and sometimes stand there for hours, or even for a whole day, awaiting removal. This is a nuisance which the city ought to abate. There is no reason why this garbage should not be removed at night, as it is in well-regulated cities elsewhere, and then it should be brought directly from the back yard and dumped into the cart or wagon. A sweeping ordinance forbidding the placing of such stuff on the sidewalk at all would reach the evil.

IT is currently reported that one blustery day last February Senator Sherman bought 100 acres of land just outside of Findlay, the Ohio gas town, paying therefor $30,000. Within sixty days he had been offered $60,000, which was speedily increased to $75,000, and the last bid a few weeks ago was $150,000 by a syndicate. Since the property was purchased Findlay has extended its lines and takes the property within the city limits. The land is to be cut up into town lots, and they say it will make a fortune for the Ohio Senator.

The Rebel Flags.

DEDICATED TO GROVER CLEVELAND.

Written for The Times.

Send back the flags! the conquered flags,
Tattered and torn and hanging in rags;
Nor think of the hosts of the mighty dead
Who against them fought in days gone by,
And bathed these folds with their young life's tide,
And dying cursed them and cursing died.

Send back the flags! Methinks at night,
They tell each other their tales of fright;
And spectres come, and their thin arms twine
Round each standard torn as they stand in line,
And once again through the smoke and strife
Those colors threaten a nation's life.

Send back the flags? They're bathed with tears;
They tell of heart-breaking, terrible years—
Of a mother's prayers, of a boy away—
Of treason crushed, of the coming day;
They tell of those who are ne'er forgot—
Send back the flags? Why come they not?

Send back the flags? We hold our breath,
And gaze with awe at those types of death.
Send back the flags? The thought will come,
(As we think of the days of sixty-one)
Of those captured flags sent home again,
Baptized in blood of our noble slain.

LAKME IN TOLEDO.

And Some Intelligent Criticisms Concerning It.

[Toledo Commercial.]

In view of the interest attaching to the occasion, and its importance to the musical interests of our city, we have got an expression of opinion on the performance from several of those who were there. One of the musical critics who occupied a free seat and had thrown off the tentative feeling of awe imposed by the price of admission, said:

"Of course I didn't expect to see it put on like it is done in Bair-lin. In Bair-lin when they give a Wagner [he said Vogner] opera, they have real horses on the stage. When I was in Bair-lin I used to dote on the opera and I went to it all the time. There isn't much to this opera. That fife solo with the drum accompaniment, where the regiment is marching, was the only thing that reminded me of Bair-lin."

This fife solo, at the time of its production in the opera, created considerable enthusiasm among the elite, whose attention had commenced to flag somewhat. Col. Bloodgood, a leading member of the G. A. R., rocked his head, played with his fingers and glanced at the people in the seats behind him. The solo was very short, and the Colonel whistled "Marching Through Georgia" softly to himself between the next two acts.

Willie Wilfur, who sings tenor in one of our church choirs and corresponds for a musical monthly, as well as occupying a position in one of our largest grocery stores, said:

"I thought it was put on beautifully, but Charlie Bassett didn't have his coat very well brushed. There weren't very many catchy airs in it either, except the fife solo. That was so short, though, that you can't whistle it without getting through too soon."

John Bolder, one of our rising young business men, who occupied a three-dollar seat near the orchestra and who is unmarried, said:

"I must say I was disappointed in the music. I expected to hear something that would penetrate one's inmost sensibilities."

"By the way," he added, "are those things the ballet girls wear put on only for performances where ministers are going to be present?"

Ebenezer Hawk, one of our bankers, a self-made man, thought it was not worth $3. "They have to carry a lot of scenery and things, but they hain't no more expense than Forepaugh's show, and I can see that for 50 cents. It's the primer donnas that makes it cost so much, and according to my notion, they might as well leave them out. The band music was good enough and the scenery was pritty, but I couldn't understand a word the primer donnas said, and I'd just as lief they hadn't been there."

This opera has been a good thing and shows us that we have men here who can pay $3 for a seat, but are not going to be bound to saying anything is good because it costs that much.

Miss Jennie Brown, who teaches music, said she thought it "was lovely; perfectly lovely." She only had a dollar seat, though.

Trees as Sanitary Pointers.

[Chicago News.]

Trees are often useful guides to the selection of residences. Numerous trees, with a rich foliage and a rank undergrowth of ferns or moss, indicate a damp, stagnant atmosphere; while abundance of flowers and fruit imply a dry, sunny climate. Children will be healthiest where most flowers grow, and old people will live longest where our common fruits ripen best, as these conditions of vegetation indicate a climate which is least favorable to bronchitis and rheumatism.

Pines and their companions, the birches, indicate a dry, rocky, or gravel soil; beeches, a dryish, chalky, or gravel soil; elms and limes, a rich and somewhat damp soil; oaks and ashes, a heavy clay soil; and poplars and willows, a low, damp, or marshy soil.

Many of these trees are found growing together, and it is only when one species predominates in number and vigor that it is truly characteristic of the soil and that portion of the atmosphere in connection with it.

Fine Assortment of Weather.

[Riverside Press.]

While Riverside is enjoying her usual run of delightful June weather, our friends at the north are struggling with a mixture of the elements that would make a New Englander feel at home. Since this month commenced they have had the thermometer ranging from 100° to 109° in the shade; have had frost on several mornings that has wrought great injury to all kinds of fruits; have had a surfeit of thunder showers, and now have had a tremendous gale accompanied by severe hailstorms and heavy rains, etc., that have done great injury to fields, orchards and vineyards, in many cases leveling everything in its path. In places the fallen hail was an inch in depth. At Arbuckle nearly an inch of rain fell in twelve minutes. At San Francisco the gale blew sixty miles per hour, and although no damage to shipping was reported in the bay, later reports may bring accounts of casualties outside. Riverside weather does pretty well for every-day use.

Know Just Where to Find It.

[Ventura Free Press.]

The LOS ANGELES TIMES is not dead after all. On the other hand it is one of the liveliest journals in California. We miss the trenchant articles of Col. Otis, whose peculiar phraseology marks everything he writes, but it is not for long, we opine. We do not agree with THE TIMES in its proposed remedy for the evils of the drink traffic—high license. But ever to its credit let it be said that THE TIMES has never yielded to the rum power by defiling its pages with whisky ads. What other daily in the southern metropolis can say as much? When a question of morals comes up you know just where to find THE TIMES.

More About the Smuggling Sensation at San Diego.

Two Tehama Young Men Meet a Frightful Death While Sleeping on a Railway Track—Grain Fields Burned Near Anderson—A Schooner Wrecked.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN DIEGO, June 19.—[Special.] Second Mate Milton and old "Charlie," of the Carlos Pacheco, together with the Irish and the English miners of the Santo Domingo camp, still languish in the smallpox jail of Ensenada, and the little Lou still lingers on the briny. Closer investigation reveals outraged witnesses of the seizure of four innocent men, along with a guilty cargo. The two miners sighted the Pacheco, and anxious to get away from starvation, to San Diego, they pulled to her in a skiff. On coming alongside they were ordered aboard, at the point of a pistol, the officer saying: "Come, or we will blow your brains out." When the moan of the gale was wildest, an accompaniment was heard in the stateroom of the Mexican officers in the mocking crack of champagne corks. All were soon asleep, while Milton and old "Charlie" sat unarmed and alone on the Lou, which jerked at the hawser. She probably would have broken loose had not Porter and Johnson made their bold leap to her, and drove her guards out at the points of pistols and set to sea.

IN A SMALLPOX JAIL.

On awaking, revenge took possession of the officers, who had lost their prize and probably their positions. The men were counseled by many not to go ashore, but were assured that they would be kept only a short while for evidence in the preliminary examination. As soon as they touched the shore a crowd flocked about the courthouse on the hill, from whose windows field-glasses were turned upon the incoming steamer. Huzzas went up from the excited ones, and the men were hurried into jail. A cell of the jail has just been emptied of a smallpox corpse, for the burial of which the Ensenada authorities offered last week $60 reward. Says Engineer Howells, a broguey, big Irishman of the Pacheco: "The men were coaxed ashore like a bird with seed; or the same as you'd bait the hook on the end of your line."

TO BE QUARANTINED.

It is learned that fully fourteen cases of smallpox are in Ensenada, and the Pacheco will be quarantined on Wednesday next, when she will return here with fifty passengers. Health Officer Magee has stationed quarantine officers at the line below.

Tom Weller will remain for his examination on Tuesday morning, and has good counsel and a strong defense. Weller is handsome and popular and generally has sympathy. He still protests his innocence. His counsel will insist on having the cigars returned to him. It is stated that Weller is a son-in-law of Maj. Emery, a rich ranchman and lawyer of Los Angeles. Should Weller go to Los Angeles, he is not looking for help from this quarter, as the two are agreed strangers to one another.

It is stated that George Ibs & Co., of Ensenada, the name on the cigar bags seized from the Pacheco, send to America 15,000 to 20,000 cigars every time the steamer Newbern brings them from San Blas, Tepic and other places. My informant refuses to state the destination of these cigars, but said he would swear to his statement.

The chief talk now is of Porter's arrival, constantly looked for, and the treatment of the prisoners unheard from, and Weller's examination on Tuesday next. C.

SLEPT ON THE TRACK.

Frightful Fate of Two Tehama Young Men.

TEHAMA, June 19.—[By the Associated Press.] Wade Tarter and Lee Turner, boys 19 years of age, residents of Tehama, who had been working in the harvest fields near here, left the ranch last evening with the evident intention of walking to Tehama. This morning their dead bodies were found on the railroad track, half a mile from town, horribly mangled. Tarter's head was almost completely severed from the body. Turner's arm was cut off and his body almost cut in two at the abdomen. The supposition is that the boys, becoming tired from their long walk, had sat down upon the track to rest and had fallen asleep. They were evidently killed by the southbound Oregon express. Tarter was a prominent member of the Tehama brass band, and a general favorite.

BASE-BALL.

The Altas Defeat the Pioneers—Some Other Games.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—The Altas won one of the most closely contested games of the season here today, defeating the Pioneers by a score of 10 to 9. It seemed for a long time as if the former would be vanquished, but they succeeded in defeating their opponents in the last round. The game was a fine exhibition of skill and strategy on the diamond. It was witnessed by the largest crowd that ever assembled in the Haight-street park. Fully 15,000 people passed through the gates and took seats on the bleaching boards. Of this number 5000 were women.

STOCKTON, June 19.—A crowd witnessed the game at Good Water Grove this afternoon between the A and G's and the G and M's. The weather was warm. The game was the most exciting of the season, and resulted in the defeat of the G and M's, who failed to make a run against their opponents.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Brooklyn, 9; Metropolitans 6.

CINCINNATI, June 19.—St. Louis, 23; Cincinnati, 4.

Schooner Wrecked at Westport.

WESTPORT, June 19.—The schooner C. H. Merithew, which arrived in port yesterday, had partly discharged her cargo of upfreight, when suddenly a heavy sea set in and with such terrific force that it was with much difficulty that the crew of the vessel managed to get ashore in safety. At 11:15 this morning she capsized. She soon drifted in on the rocks and went to pieces. Most of the freight remaining on board belonged to Gill, Gordon & Co., of this place. The vessel was mostly insured, and was owned in San Francisco. Capt. Johnson, in command, owned one-eighth.

Grain Fields Burned.

ANDERSON, June 19.—Fire broke out in the grain fields south of this place this afternoon, and destroyed over 1000 acres of valuable wheat. It originated from a spark out of the stovepipe of A. B. Humphrey's house, which set on fire a forty-acre piece of wheat, the property of T. W. H. Shanahan, and from there it spread to R. R. James's wheat, destroying nearly 400 acres; thence to Jasson's, who lost 600 acres. A hot north wind was blowing. Although hundreds of men came to the rescue, they were soon exhausted.

Porter Ashe Goes East.

SACRAMENTO, June 19.—R. Porter Ashe, accompanied by J. B. Killgard, passed through on the overland train this evening, en route to Saratoga to meet Ashe's mount, Bimnetta, Geraldine and Idaline Cottar, who were shipped the other day in charge of Mike Kelly. The horses are entered in several Eastern centers.

Two Fatalities.

YREKA, June 19.—A brakeman on the north-bound freight fell between the cars at Sessions today. Both legs were cut off by the car-wheels. He was brought to Montague. He died before medical aid could be had.

A man was drowned in McCloud Lake at Edson's today. His name is not known.

The Apaches.

TUCSON (Ariz.), June 19.—A special to the Globe says: "Eleven hostiles passed northward yesterday afternoon within twelve miles, pursued hotly by Lieut. Johnson's command. It is believed that they hope to reach the White Mountains."

Smallpox at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—There is one new case of smallpox here today.

Hot Weather at Santa Rosa.

SANTA ROSA, June 19.—The thermometer at 3 p.m. stood at 103° in the shade.

OLD SILENT AGAIN.

How He Enters C. C. Ellsworth's House and Gets Two Boxes.

Old Silent, the bold and slippery house-robber, got in his work again early yesterday morning. He entered C. C. Ellsworth's house, at No. 24 Ducommun street, and broke a trunk open. There were two tin boxes in the trunk and one of them contained a valuable diamond ring and several papers of more or less value. Old Si walked off with both boxes, and was probably as mad as a wet hen when he discovered that they did not contain jewelry valuable enough to take him to Europe for his health. If he keeps up his lick he will go through every house in the city in a week or ten days.

BRIEFS.

The Woman's Suffrage Club meets on Tuesday.

The county examinations of teachers begin tomorrow.

The Queen's Jubilee ball takes place in Armory Hall tomorrow evening.

The distribution of lands in the California Coöperative Colony takes place in I. O. G. T. Hall today.

The current issue of the Sunday Social World has a good picture and biographical sketch of W. N. Monroe.

There will be a social at the Church of Christ, on Temple street, tomorrow evening, which will be made enjoyable for all who attend.

At a late hour last night it was reported that a boy had been downed at Santa Monica during the day, but the report could not be verified.

Ed Dunham, of the Nadeau House, is already preparing for next winter. He is quietly engaging every lodging-house in the city that can be had.

Coroner Meredith, who returned from the mountains yesterday, reports that the Sespé Ditch Company is making rapid progress on the big ditch, which will soon be ready for use.

A large number of people went to the seaside at Santa Monica yesterday. Capt. Tyler, who was along, said there was not so much as a dog fight to interrupt the enjoyment of the day.

There was a grand funeral in Chinatown yesterday afternoon. Roast pigs and poultry, nuts, candies, etc., were provided in abundance. Twenty-five hacks followed a gorgeous hearse in the solemn procession, containing mourners dressed in white.

THE TIMES acknowledges a serenade last night from A. A. Bermine, G. W. Daykin and F. A. Campisano. Mr. Bermine played the mandolin, an Italian instrument, resembling a small guitar, and the other gentlemen played the guitars. They made delicious melody.

I. W. Lord, the father of Lordsburg, who was in town Saturday, stated that the final conclusion is to build a $60,000 hotel at the new metropolis. The building is to be of frame, in the villa style, and will occupy the middle of a block, allowing for ornamental grounds.

Coroner James Meredith, Sutherland Hutton, J. W. Haverstick and Thomas B. Brown returned from a hunting trip about Hot Springs yesterday. The boys did not reach the hot springs, but they got far enough into the mountains to find a plenty of fish and game.

José Napoleon started out to capture all the dives in town, Saturday night, and early yesterday morning he ran into a dive on Alameda street that was too much for him. He pulled his little razor and was doing all in his power to defend himself, when Officer Davis put in an appearance and locked him up.

NOT DEAD.

J. Harry Conlon Reported Dead By a Wag.

Some wag played rather a serious joke on J. Harry Conlon, the decorator, last night, while that gentleman was at church. The wag telephoned to the police station that Conlon had died suddenly at the Hammam baths on Main street, and asked the officers to send Orr & Sutch's dead wagon down at once. The joke was not exploded until Mr. Conlon was met on the street in a happy and healthy frame of mind.

PERSONAL NEWS.

D. Gilbert Dexter is in Elsinore.

G. A. Walsh, of Ventura, was at the St. Elmo yesterday.

Frank Pixley and wife went to Santa Monica Saturday.

C. H. Condee and Mrs. E. Condee, of San Bernardino, were at the St. Elmo yesterday.

Charles H. Dunsmore, County Clerk, James Rowan and Len Thompson, left for San Francisco on a pleasure trip yesterday.

"Capt." J. F. Jones, late publisher of the late San Pedro Shipping Gazette, is now editor and proprietor of the City Front Gazette, San Francisco.

A Reporter Locked Up.

H. C. Parkhurst, an Express reporter, who has given the police force a good deal of trouble of late, was snoring quietly in a hallway on Main street, near Court, at a late hour last night. The inmates of the house became weary and notified the police. Officer Moffitt conducted the tired reporter to the City Prison and locked him up. Parkhurst was only released yesterday morning.

The Busy Recorder's Office.

County Recorder Gibson reports that, in making up a summary of work accomplished in his office during the past fourteen days, he finds the daily average of copying to be 1124 folios, or 112,400 words. The force now employed is slowly gaining on the mass of work which is piled up.

She Plays Cowboy.

Miss Alice Coole, an English woman, who came in town yesterday to have a good time, was arrested late last night for playing cowboy on Los Angeles street. She was full of bad whisky, and Officer Morton, who arrested her, had a hard time of it in getting her to the police station.

Just as Effective.

[Norristown Herald.]

A paralytic young woman, who had been unable to walk for years, was conveyed to a revival meeting one night recently, and during prayer she suddenly arose, gave an ear-piercing shout, climbed over three pews, gained the aisle and made a dash for the pulpit. It was not another faith-cure, as many persons in the congregation supposed. She had simply seen a mouse in her pew near her feet.

Good for George.

Henry George was cornered by a schoolgirl at the Packard Institute in New York. He said all land was God-given, and therefore for the benefit of all mankind, whereat she inquired if the Netherlands, diked in by the Dutch, were not man-rescued and rightfully possessed by those whose labor had brought the land out of the sea.

Condition of Wheat in the Valley of the Mississippi.

Another Sharp Shock of Earthquake Near Charleston.

Highwaymen Hold Up a Missouri Stage in Approved Dick Turpin Style, but Secure Only a Small Swag—Other Events Across the Rockies.

By Telegraph to The Times.

WASHINGTON, June 19.—[By the Associated Press.] The Signal Office has issued the following weather bulletin for the week ending June 18, 1887:

Temperature during the week ending June 18th: The weather has been warmer than the average for the week, except at stations on the Atlantic and Gulf coasts, in the West Gulf States, and on the Pacific coast north of San Francisco. In the wheat and corn regions of the North the excess of temperature for the week has been from 25° to 70°, an average daily excess above normal of from 4° to 10°. The greatest excess of temperature occurred in the Northwest, and the weather conditions of the week are reported as especially favorable for wheat and corn, except in sections of Illinois, Iowa and Eastern Missouri, where all crops, except corn, have been more or less injured by drought.

Temperature for sections from January 1st to June 18, 1887: In the cotton and corn regions there has been an excess of temperature, the daily average ranging from 1° to 2°, while on the South Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and in Northern California the temperature for the season has been slightly below normal.

Rainfall during the week: There has been a deficiency of rainfall generally throughout the agricultural regions east of the Rocky Mountains, except in sections of Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas, where slight excesses are reported. The greatest deficiency of rainfall occured in the Southern States, the Lower Ohio and Central Mississippi valleys. The deficiency in Iowa, Illinois and Southern Wisconsin exceeds five inches, while an excess is reported from the North Pacific coast and the Upper Ohio Valley.

The week has been generally favorable for the staple crops. There has been more than an average amount of sunshine in the central valleys, and the weather has been especially favorable for harvesting, which has been largely completed for wheat and hay in the Southern States, and now extends to the forty-second parallel in many sections of the wheat region."

REVIEW OF CROP CONDITIONS.

CHICAGO, June 19.—The following is the weekly crop summary printed by the Farmers' Review:

At date of writing the winter wheat crop, so far as reached, is in a state of maturity. Reports show no change in its condition and none will take place unless hail, insects or rust should damage the ripening grain. Eight winter wheat-growing States report an average condition of crop at 89 per cent. Other reports on its condition in different States are as follows: Twenty counties in Illinois report an average condition of 89 per cent. Insects and drought are little complained of and eight counties in Indiana report a condition at 91 per cent. Kansas counties report no improvement in the crop. The damage by insects are very serious in Marshall, Smith, Franklin and Neosho counties. Kentucky reports an average condition of 96 per cent., with damage by insects in Hardin county. Michigan reports an average condition of 93 per cent. Missouri counties report an average condition of 100 per cent. Ten counties in Ohio report a condition of 68 per cent. Seven counties in Wisconsin place the average at 93 per cent., with damage by chinchbugs in Portage county.

The condition of spring wheat in different States is as follows: Wisconsin counties report an average condition of 63 per cent. Seventeen counties in Iowa place the average at 84 per cent. Eleven Minnesota counties report an average of 87 per cent. Nine Nebraska counties place the average at 90 per cent., and six counties in Dakota report an average of 109 per cent.

The condition of the oat crop, from drought and insects, is everywhere below the average.

Corn prospects are first-class.

Hay and grass are short, from drought.

Fruit prospects are fair.

STAGE-ROBBERY.

Masked Outlaws Plundering Travelers in Missouri.

BALDWIN (St. Louis County, Mo.), June 19.—The Baldwin and Manchester stage, which runs from here to Tirrette, on the Missouri Pacific, twice a day, was stopped this afternoon about 6 o'clock when returning, about half a mile from Barrett's, by three masked men. The men were concealed in the thick underbrush, which skirts the road on both sides, near what is known as Sugar Creek bridge, and as the stage, with its fifteen passengers, approached, the robbers advanced with drawn revolvers, and ordered Mr. Bennett, the driver, to stop, and the passengers to fall into line.

There is some dispute as to the actual number of men engaged in the robbery, some of the passengers claiming that there were six drawn revolvers concealed in the underbrush in case any resistance should be offered. The masks worn were made of red handkerchiefs with holes cut in them, and one man had the sleeve of an undershirt drawn over his head as its only covering. In amount of money and valuables the robbers made a poor haul, securing only $250. It is estimated that $2500 in money and valuables escaped.

Commencement at Wells College.

ROCHESTER, June 19.—Commencement at Wells College, at Aurora, N. Y., began this evening, when the baccalaureate sermon was delivered at the Presbyterian Church by Dr. Edward Frisby, president of the college. Mrs. Cleveland was present and also attended divine services in the morning at the same church. Mrs. Cleveland is looking in excellent health, and evidently had a very enjoyable time.

Clearing-house Returns.

BOSTON, June 19.—Managers of the leading clearing-houses in the United States report the total gross exchanges for the week ending June 18th as compared with the corresponding week in 1886 to be $1,032,333,834, an increase of 11.2 per cent.

An Earthquake.

CHARLESTON, June 19.—The News and Courier reports a startling shock of earthquake at Summerville at 10:37 this morning, accompanied by a most prolonged roaring, equal to that of March 22d of last year. Charleston is quiet.

A Defaulter Arrested.

TORONTO, June 19.—James A. Wilson, a Philadelphia forger, was arrested in this city last night. He had been living here with his wife and family, under an assumed name, for the past two months. His defalcations are reported to amount to $600,000.

Jubilee Services in New York.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Several thousand persons gathered at the Trinity Church Jubilee chorus services to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the accession of Her Majesty Queen Victoria.

The Los Angeles Herald concludes that the Prohibition party will swallow the Republican party. We take pleasure in informing that moss-back concern that the Labor party will spew out the Democratic party in the year 1888, and that the Republicans will have a great statesman in the Executive chair at Washington.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS.

Preparations for the Queen's Jubilee.

Riot Between Orangemen and Socialists at Liverpool.

Appalling Reports of Ravages of Cholera in South America.

Result of the Hungarian Elections—Reception of Editor O'Brien in Dublin—The Recent Disaster on the Danube Not as Bad as at First Reported.

By Telegraph to The Times.

LONDON, June 19.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The Prince of Wales and his sons met the Duke of Aosta, Grand Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and Prince Hermon on their arrival in London yesterday. The streets of the city were thronged with people eager to see the Jubilee preparations, and to catch a glimpse of the foreign royal visitors. The German Crown Prince and his family passed the day at Marlborough House with the Princess of Wales. They attended the service in the Chapel Royal, where most of the Jubilee guests met.

Jubilee services were held throughout the kingdom today. The Marchioness of Londonderry will present to the Queen a casket, containing 150,000 signatures and £3700 in cash, as a Jubilee offering from Irish ladies.

The joint Jubilee gift to the Queen from all her children and grandchildren will be a gold and silver centerpiece table, adorned with precious stones. It was executed in Berlin. It comprises three parts, resting on a common base, in the center of which are the British arms, bearing the legend: "Her children and grandchildren to their ever-beloved mother and grandmother."

The middle portion consists of a vase adorned with the arms and portraits of the donors. It has a solid gold lid, surrounded by a royal crown. To the right and left, respectively, are a lion and unicorn.

RIOT AT LIVERPOOL.

LONDON, June 19.—A riot occurred during the Jubilee celebration at Liverpool today between a party of Orangemen and a crowd of Socialists. Sticks and stones were freely used, and many on both sides received serious cuts and bruises. The police dispersed the rioters and arrested five leading parties.

CHOLERA'S RAVAGES.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 19.—Advices by the steamer from South America today, state that an idea of the direful effects of cholera in Santiago de Chili may be drawn from the account given by a correspondent of the amount expended in that capital through cholera since March. The correspondent says: "We have expended in this Santiago district $190,000, of which $150,000 has been obtained from the Government, and $35,000 from the municipality."

On one hospital $50,000 has been spent and on its furniture $20,000. In the cholera cemetery three immense brick-work receptacles were lined with Roman cement. Each one was made to contain 3000 bodies, and all are built deep enough to enable a thick covering of lime to be placed over the corpses and subsequently at least one meter of earth. Each of these sepulchres cost $1500.

THE HUNGARIAN ELECTIONS.

PESTH, June 19.—The elections have resulted in the election of 224 Liberals, 38 Moderate Oppositionists, 59 Independent Anti-Semitics and 15 members of no particular party.

DROWNED PILGRIMS.

Of the party of pilgrims who, while crossing the Danube River at Paks, were thrown into the water by the capsizing of the boat, 127 were rescued and eighty-seven are still missing, and the bodies of ten, who were drowned, have been recovered.

O'BRIEN IN DUBLIN.

DUBLIN, June 19.—William O'Brien arrived here this evening, and was received with the greatest ovation witnessed here in many years.

STEAMER MOVEMENTS.

PLYMOUTH, June 19.—Arrived: Steamer Gellert, from New York for Hamburg.

The steamer La Normandie, from New York for Havre, passed the Lizard today.

THE WEATHER.

Synopsis for the Past Twenty-four Hours—Indications.

LOS ANGELES SIGNAL OFFICE, June 19.—At 4:07 a.m. today the thermometer registered 60; at 12:07 p.m., 76; at 7:07 p.m., 63. Barometer for corresponding periods, 29.75, 29.76, 29.77. Maximum temperature, 77.0; minimum temperature, 58.0. Weather fair.

GRANT IN 1857.

An Occasion When He Didn't Look Like a West Pointer.

[New York Sun.]

Gen. Averill, the Union cavalry leader, tells an interesting story of the first time he ever saw Ulysses S. Grant. It was in 1857, while Gen. Averill was on his way to join his regiment in New Mexico. When he got fourteen miles or so west of St. Louis, leave was given him to go back for a few days. He had to wait nearly an hour at Kirkwood for a returning train, and he passed the time chatting with Lieut. Craig and his wife on the porch of their cottage. Craig was the commissary of the expedition.

While they were sitting there there came up the country road which skirted the railway a single horseman, wearing a blue overcoat, such as private soldiers wear, and a black felt hat rather broken and worn. In his hand he carried a small black-snake whip, which he applied to the pot-bellied mare he was riding. The animal's mane and tail, it was noticed, were full of burrs. The brownish-red face of the stranger was covered with a stubby, sandy beard. When he reached the gate he halted, dismounted, and fastened his animal to the picket fence. Lieut. Craig went down to meet him. After an earnest conversation the man unfastened his animal, slowly mounted, and rode away. When the lieutenant returned to the porch he remarked, "Averill, would you believe that that man had ever belonged to the army?"

"Yes," was the reply, "he might have been an old soldier."

"No," said Craig, "I mean as an officer and graduate of the Military Institute."

"He doesn't look it now," Averill rejoined. "Who is he?"

"That's old Ulysses Grant, of the Fourth Infantry," the lieutenant answered. "He wanted to be employed as commissary clerk to drive the beef cattle and issue the rations while we are crossing the plains. I couldn't employ him."

Hurrah for Bitumen.

[Santa Cruz Sun.]

That the use of bituminous rock for paving purposes is destined to be a leading industry, will be conceded by all who have observed the utility and durability of the material as tested on the streets of this city. Our pavements today are doing as much as any one thing to add fame to our city, and the time will come when "Santa Cruz pavement" will be as famous as were the roads of Rome in the days of the Empire.

Not That Kind of Sentiment.

[San José Mercury.]

These flags stored up in the War Department could not very seriously wound the feelings of any ex-Confederate. Sentiment is very good in its place; but sentiment which endeavors to obliterate the verdict of arms and the triumph of men who fought for human liberty, and the perpetuation of free institutions on this continent, is not the kind which should be encouraged or applauded.

She Just Does.

[Pomona Progress.]

Southern California has a large number of town lots unoccupied, to be sure, but then doesn't she invite the world to come?

BASE-BALL.

The Haverlys Get a Bad One on the Los Angeles Team.

Yesterday's game resulted in favor of the Haverlys by a score of 10 to 1. Incell, the pitcher of the Haverlys, had the home batsmen completely at his mercy. But one hit was made off his delivery, which was made by Swan in the ninth inning. Young scored the only run for Los Angeles, and that on a very bad throw of Incell's to first base.

Turner's second-base play, McVey's playing at first and several stops of Young's were about the only brilliant fielding done by the home team. Monroe supported Hapeman but fairly. Several of the runs scored by the Haverlys were due to his passed balls, although he made several very difficult stops. Coffman played a miserable game. He is an excellent thrower, but a poor man on a ground ball. Hapeman, with good support, would have fooled the visitors almost as badly as he did in the last game.

Following is the score:

The Legend of the Gas.

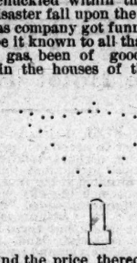
[Elmer C. Rice, in "Life."]

And in the fourth reign of the satrap war there was much peace and prosperity throughout the city, and the merchants flourished and the caravans brought goodly goods from the far east.

But as the city prospered, and the city fathers chuckled within themselves, even so did disaster fall upon the city.

The gas company got funny.

Now be it known to all that ere until this had the gas been of good quality, and burned in the houses of the townspeople thus:



Yea, and the price thereof was but two pieces of gold per M. And the young men, and the old men, and the middle-aged men, and the women, even so were they satisfied.

But, behold, did the gas company reason within themselves that their shekels could be increased by a new plan.

And therewith they erected a water-gas plant, and, with mercenary intent, mingled they it with their former good gas. And then was the illumination of the city carried on thus:

Now, Abou Ben Levi was a tradesman of the city. And when he did discover the poor quality of the gas, even so did he tear his beard and swear by the Prophet, for he was a righteous man.

For he wist not by this light whether he sold a corn-colored silk or a web of cotton cloth.

And he called his brother tradesmen unto him, and they debated long on the subject. Finally they sent in a petition.

And the gas company were much wroth. Even so did they see their dividends about to dwindle.

And the superintendent called his men about him and told he them to go to the uttermost parts of the city and gather up all the old iron, and the pots of lead, and the heavy rocks.

And, lo, in a few days they brought together more junk than had ever been seen by the oldest inhabitant.

And the superintendent ordered them to pile it upon the reservoir of the gas. Even so gleefully complied they, and worked they thus seven days.

And at the end of that time did the superintendent smile blandly, and hie himself to the store of Abou Ben Levi.

And he found Abou much pleased, for the light was much improved. Even so expressed the other tradesmen. But they wist not of what they spake.

And the superintendent winked unto himself and returned to the gashouse.

But now were strange noises heard in the cellars of the citizens, and Abou Ben Levi was much alarmed. And he betook himself one night to his own cellar, and even there did he find the noise, as of perpetual motion.

And he investigated, and surely did he find his meter become a motor, for the hands revolved with amazing quickness around the dial.

And he was much alarmed. But he told his thoughts to no one, and continued he about his business.

And at the end of the month did he go up to the house of the gas company, not with his accustomed ease, but with fear and trembling. And falteringly did he ask of the treasurer for his bill for the preceding month.

And the treasurer busied himself for a long time, as if adding countless figures. Then did he hand the manuscript to the impatient Abou.

And lo, Abou Ben Levi fell, and delivered up the ghost.

He had used 50,000,000 feet of gas at $3 a thousand.

Walking Delegate vs. Capitalist.

[Chicago Standard.]

The workingmen of this country are gaining useful knowledge every day—a knowledge that thousands are placing themselves under a harder taskmaster, and more tyrannical than the much-anathematized "capital" has ever shown itself to be. They have placed themselves in a position where, at the beck of an idle "walking delegate," they are compelled to throw down their tools, abandon their work and go out into idleness and probable want. There is this difference between capital and the walking delegate—the one affords them the means of livelihood, the other of starvation. And to those who are willing to labor and refuse to place themselves in this condition, the methods adopted of coercion and prevention are the worst kind of tyranny, such as ought not to be tolerated a moment in this country, but ought to be met and put down by the strong arm of the law. Every citizen has a right to call upon the State for protection against combination and conspiracy, and public opinion is fast reaching that point where it will demand such protection in behalf of those who need it so much.

The President's Bait.

[San Francisco Post.]

The New York World, which has been regarded as a severe and even captious critic of the President, comes to his defense on the bait question. Mr. Cleveland has been censured by piscatorial parties for fishing with worms instead of flies, but the World shows, on the authority of Izaak Walton, that the worm is entirely legitimate, if not actually preferable.

SEAVEY.

HE GIVES HIS EXPERIENCE WITH MRS. PADDOCK.

The Charges Against Him He Answers in Detail—He Did Not Run Away with the Other Woman—He Is Writing to Santa Barbara.

[Omaha Daily World.]

Chief of Police Seavey was found at his office today by a reporter for the World and talked much more freely than on any previous occasion; not because he wanted to be interviewed—he evidently felt that he had almost been driven to talk. The abuse that has been heaped upon him in certain newspapers has had its effect, and although he is a strong man he shows evidence of suffering.

When asked if he had any fear as to the result of the investigation that the Commissioners are making, he said: "No; not the least. So far as the outcome is concerned, I know that I will be all right. It is the humiliation that I suffer from these slanderous lies that are being circulated about me that I dislike. My domestic affairs I consider should be a personal matter with me. My lips have been, so far, sealed on that subject. I have not one word of censure for the woman that was once my wife."

Speaking with a great deal of feeling, the Chief continued: "No man can say to me that the woman that was Mrs. Seavey was ever a bad woman. I don't say that myself. In fact, I have nothing to say of her. She may have been good, and she may have been bad. The same thing may be said of my conduct. Of these things, domestically speaking, I have nothing to say, today, tomorrow or forever. A woman always has public sympathy, and in a great many cases deserves more than she gets. Of the woman that was once my wife I have no hard words to utter.

The Chief was writing letters to citizens of Santa Barbara, Cal., when the reporter entered. They were addressed to the present Deputy Marshal and ex-Marshal, the City Clerk, the County Clerk and one or two other citizens. The letter addressed to the Deputy Marshal read, in substance, that Mr. Seavey had learned that he was sending messages to Omaha reflecting upon his (Seavey's) character, and asked him to write a letter, answering certain questions, and also reminded him of the fact that he (Seavey) had for years provided for and protected the woman that is now his (the Deputy Marshal's) wife at a time when she had neither friends nor money. The other letters, with one exception, were addressed to the citizens for information as to Seavey's conduct, character and competency during the time he lived in Santa Barbara. The exceptional letter was addressed to the Clerk of the District Court, asking for information as to the date that Mrs. Lottie Seavey commenced an action for a divorce from W. S. Seavey, the grounds alleged and the date and decree of the court. Copies of these letters, and the answers that may be received will be turned over to the Commissioners. The latter are also in correspondence with prominent citizens of Santa Barbara on the same subject.

"What have you to say of the telegrams that have been received from Santa Barbara in regard to your elopement with a Mrs. Charles Paddock?" asked the reporter.

"Really, I prefer to say little at all at present," answered the Chief, "for the entire matter is now in the hands of the Commissioners. But I will say this, that when living in Santa Barbara I became acquainted with a number of gentlemen of the name of Paddock—all brothers. Later we became intimate friends, and our families visited each other frequently. Charles Paddock was a commercial man, and his wife being the lady with whom my name has been scandalously connected. I will drop the other Paddocks and tell you of Charles and his wife. In the summer of 1878 he moved with his family from Santa Barbara to San Francisco. I neither saw nor heard anything of them for over a year. In the autumn of 1879, while I was still City Marshal, I was granted a four-months' furlough. I went from Santa Barbara to Los Angeles, and from there to San Francisco. While in the latter city I called upon Mr. Charles Paddock. I found Mrs. Paddock just recovering from a spell of sickness. She was still very weak, but was prepering to go off on a vacation. She told me that she was going from San Francisco to Santa Barbara to visit old friends and from there to Chicago, where she had relatives. After becoming recuperated in that city she said she would go to Austin, Minn., where a rich relative had died and left her considerable money. I then escorted her to the train and across the bay to Oakland. That was the last time I saw Mrs. Paddock, and I have not heard of her from that day to this. The route I then pursued is of little interest to the public. I might say, however, that I first went to South America, and finally to Honolulu. The report that I left California with Mrs. Paddock or any other woman is false."

"When you left Santa Barbara on your furlough was it understood that you were to come back?"

"There was no understanding about it."

"Did you intend to go back at the time you started?"

"I don't care to talk about that, as it will again bring up my domestic affairs, and of them I will positively not talk."

"Did you draw your salary as City Marshal while you were away?"

"No; but Mrs. Seavey did."

"When did you get those letters of recommendation from citizens of Santa Barbara that you filed with the Commissioners here before you were appointed?"

"Before I left there and while or before I was elected City Marshal."

"Do you know that it is rumored on the streets that some of those letters were forged?"

"No; I had not heard it, but am not surprised. If the men are not dead I can verify all of their signatures."

There was a meeting of the Commissioners yesterday evening, but as there was not a full attendance nothing was accomplished. Mr. Seavey denied the reports of the inimical newspapers regarding his conduct while at Santa Barbara, but the Commissioners concluded to investigate the matter fully before deciding what to do.

SANTA BARBARA TRIBE.

Male and Female Cemeteries and Hairy Monuments.

[Santa Barbara Independent.]

When in 1769 the Spanish explorers in their northward march came to the locality of the present Santa Barbara, they found there a large native village. The inhabitants were fishermen, who had fine boats, twenty-four feet long, made of pine boards. They also possessed considerable artistic skill, as exhibited in their woodcarvings, which were eagerly bought by the Spaniards, who in return gave glass beads to the natives. Much further removed from barbarism than other coast tribes, the Santa Barbara Indians nevertheless shared the usual contemptuous opinion and treatment of women. Such an inference, at least, may be drawn from the peculiar kind of graveyards which were near their place. One cemetery had painted poles crowned with human hair on the graves, the other had poles with a cora or grass basket attached to each. The hair-poles indicate male graves, and the basket-poles female resting-places. Of the women it was thought unnecessary to preserve their hair, but of importance to exhibit a symbol of their place as toilers. Some of the graves were opened recently, and the relics found in them were ascribed by many to prehistoric times, and to extinct races. Such, however, was not the case, according to Hubert Howe Bancroft's "History of California." It is now known that a superior civilization swallows up an inferior grade, and the present descendants of the Indians of the last century have sunk back to their low estate, simply because of the depressing and destroying influence upon their rude arts exercised by the civilization of the white races.

Mysterious Disappearance.

[Dakota Bell.]

Where is now the summer dicer that I laid away last fall; on a nail up in the attic, it was hung upon the wall. All the winter long it hung there, where the spiders loved to stray; now I need it, it has wandered far away—ay—far away—now I need it, it has wandered far away—ay, far away.

But life of earth; if with the pall
Of death, covering our senseless clay,
Our being passes into nothingness away.

JUNE.

June is the month of flowers and bright blue skies
The wide world overs scarce a shadow lies
Beneath her lids of rose, her cheeks of bloom.
Her days are long and sweet and yet they pass too soon.
Her breath holds all the fragrance sweet of violet,
And lily fair, and clear-browed mignonette,
And honeysuckle's bloom; the pansy's face
Is lifted, purple-eyed and fair,
And birds sing to her, breathing every where
Of love and joy, of purity and peace;
And all her morns stand golden in the east.
Heaven seems not very far when June is here,
'Tis just beyond her starlight still and clear.

A Specific for Croup.

Mr. J. J. LaGrange, a prominent druggist of Avoca, Neb., says: "I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for Croup. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the most important requisites where a cough remedy is intended for use among children. I have known of cases of spasmodic croup where I know the life of a little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." Sold by C. H. Hane, 77 and 79 North Spring street.

Mr. C. H. Shawen, Wellsville, Kan., says: "It is with pleasure that I can speak of the good Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy has done in my family during the last thirteen years. In the most obstinate cases of summer complaint and diarrhœa among my children it acts as a charm, making it never necessary to call in a physician. I can truthfully say that it is my judgment, based on years of experience, that there is not a medicine in the market that is its equal as a family remedy, and that I will never keep house without a bottle of it in my possession." QUEENS OF THE DUDES.

...thing About Reigning Favorites of the Footlights.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, June 3.

That peculiar class of humanity who have, in different ages, been known as "beaux," "bucks," "tops," "swells," and down to our own darling dudes, have at all times had some common object of adoration toward whom the eyes of all were turned and whose capricious favor all strove to obtain. The dude of the middle ages was, to be sure, a very different creature from the dude of to-day, but in the knightly chronicles of Froissart we read how the mediæval swell used to get his gilded armor all mussed up and risk his own precious neck in the tourneys in honor of the queen of youth and beauty.

The reign of each of these queens has been short and has left but small impress upon the history of the world, but each in her time was, no doubt, the all absorbing object of the adoration of the jeunesse doree of her age, as our present queens of the dudes are to-day, but when her brief reign was over she did not pass into history. She was forgotten. Adelaide Neilson is but a name to one younger generation of play goers as Lillian Russell and Pauline Hall will be to the next. For the queens of the dudes have for the last century been divinities of the footlights, and it is in the lime light's glare that we must look for the queens of dudedom of to-day.

Lillian Russell was the first upon whom the regal title was bestowed by the press, and she deserved it, too, for young New York went mad over her baby face and pretty ways; but Lillian is getting in the sere and yellow now, and holds her scepter with a faltering grip; besides she is growing fat, and a fat queen is out of the question. Born in Clinton, Ia., in December, 1861, she made her first appearance as a violinist in Chicago. When she came to New York a little later she decided to give up the violin and trust for success to her face, which was remarkably pretty, and her voice, which was only pretty and pleasing. Her name at that time was Helen Louise Leonard, and she was christened Lillian Russell by Tony Pastor because the combination of "ls" in the name looked well on a three sheet poster. While at Tony Pastor's she was discovered by Mr. E. E. Rice, who has probably employed more pretty girls than any other man in the theatrical business. Once with him she became the furore. Hundreds of dollars worth of flowers were sent to her almost every night. She was made queen of the dudes without a dissenting voice. Then her marital idiosyncrasies began to exhibit themselves, and everybody is familiar with her more recent history.

Pauline Hall was the next stage beauty to take dudedom by storm. She made her first appearance in Rice's Evangeline company in the "front row" of the chorus. She is a Cincinnati girl, from "over the Rhine," and her real name is, or was, Pauline Schmidtgall. She is now, in the eyes of the law and to the favored ones who have the honor of her acquaintance, Mrs. White. She is always foremost in any effort to assist unfortunate members of the profession. Personally she is jolly and unaffected. She has studied hard during the past few years, and has improved wonderfully both in singing and acting.

Isabella Urquhart is, from a purely artistic standpoint, perhaps the most beautiful of any who have held the scepter over New York dudedom. With a face and figure like a Greek statue, her classical outlines caught the popular fancy at once. She still reigns, and a by no means small number of theatre goers enthusiastically refer to her as the most beautiful woman on the stage. She, however, values her kingdom but lightly, and devotes herself to study, her ambition being centered in her art. She made her first appearance at the Standard theatre, under Henderson's management, and since has played opposite to Pauline Hall at the Casino. Miss Urquhart is one of the cold and reserved beauties, and keeps her admirers at a very respectful distance. She is one of the few dude queens who have brains as well as beauty. The breath of scandal has never tainted her reputation, and this is possibly the reason why we have not seen more of her name in the papers.

Marie Jansen is a chubby, roly poly, jolly creature, who made her first appearance with Ed. Rice in Boston some four or five years ago. She then came to New York and took the dudes by storm by her singing of "Oh, Mamma," in the Black Hussar. Wherever she went she was the idol of the dude contingent. Now she is at the Casino and is recognized as the especial pet of the gilded youths who compose the Seventh regiment.

Mrs. Langtry can hardly be enrolled in this category among the dude queens, for, though the jeunesse doree went crazy over her for a time, she selected her own particular dude early in her career and stuck to him through thick and thin. It is pretty definitely settled now that she will marry Fred. Gebhardt so soon as she can procure a divorce from her husband. Her beauty has so often been described that people who see her are generally disappointed. It consists mainly in a queenly carriage and a marvelous complexion added to a certain charm of manner which would convince a blind man that she must be lovely.

In addition to those I have mentioned, there have been a number of lesser queens who have risen, reigned over their little kingdoms and relapsed into obscurity. Beauty is the prime factor in the title of queenship, and it is no easy matter to preserve that quality with the late hours, wine suppers and high tension living which successful reigning over dudedom requires. Stage beauties are much more careful of their figures and complexions than society belles. The majority of them have a regular system, which may not be uninteresting to some of my fair readers. To begin with, if the stage beauty goes to bed late she sleeps late, for there is nothing more destructive to feminine good looks than lack of sleep. Immediately upon rising she takes a cool bath, not the cold "tub" of our English cousins, for that tends to make the skin too ruddy, but just enough hot water in the bath to take the chill off. Then after being rubbed down she eats a light breakfast of fruit and oat meal. In the morning she takes just enough exercise to keep the flesh from becoming flabby, not enough to make it muscular, however. Lunch is another light meal of fruit and grain food. Fencing and boxing are practiced to keep the joints supple, and frequent Turkish baths preserve the skin in good condition. Some cover the face with a paste of oat meal to whiten the complexion; others wash the face only in pure, cool, not cold, water, without a touch of soap. Olga Brandon, who was a stage beauty in her time, never touched water to her face at all, but rubbed it with a piece of dry white velvet. The stage beauty avoids all greasy food and all kinds of stimulants, including tea and coffee. She goes to bed early as often as she can. In short, in private life she is more of a slave to her own complexion and figure than are her admirers. Thus she makes up for the ravages of late hours and champagne suppers. She lives a double life, checking herself at every turn, and at the best her reign is limited to a few years. Another beauty catches the public fancy, and the reigning queen is deposed to make way for her.

Does it pay?

Assessment Notice.

Marengo Water Company.

Location of principal place of business Los Angeles, California. Location of works Los Angeles county, California.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that, at a meeting of the Board of Directors, held on the 10th of June, 1887, an assessment (No. 1), of $1.50 per share was levied upon the capital stock of the corporation, payable immediately, in United States gold coin, to the Secretary, at the office of the Company, room 10, No. 25 West First street, Los Angeles, California.

Any stock upon which this assessment shall remain unpaid on the 13th day of July, 1887, will be delinquent and advertised for sale at public auction; and, unless payment is made before, will be sold on Saturday, the 6th day of August, 1887, to pay the delinquent assessment, together with cost of advertising and expenses of sale. By order of the Board of Directors,

W. G. HUGHES, Secretary.

Office, room 10, No. 25 West First street, Los Angeles, California.

Order to Show Cause Why a Sale of Real Estate Should Not Be Made.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF Los Angeles County, State of California. In the matter of the estate of Henry Preston, deceased. Amelia M. F. Preston, the executrix of the last will and testament of Henry Preston, deceased, having filed her petition herein, duly verified, praying for an order of sale of the whole of the real estate of the decedent, or so much thereof as shall be necessary for the purposes therein set forth; it is therefore ordered by the Court that all persons interested in the estate of the said deceased appear before the said Superior Court on Monday the 18th day of July, 1887, at 10 o'clock a.m. of said day, at the courtroom of said court (in the department having charge of probate), in Los Angeles city, and the room of said Court, to show cause why an order should not be granted to the said executrix to sell so much of the real estate of said deceased at private sale as shall be necessary, and further order that a copy of this order be published at least four successive weeks in the Los Angeles TIMES, a newspaper printed and published in said county. W. P. GARDINER, Judge.

Dated June 14, 1887.

DOUBLE-ACTING, CONTINUOUS,

HAY, STRAW, & WOOL PRESS

READ THE FOLLOWING:

EL CAJON, San Diego Co., Cal., Aug. 1, 1885.

Whitman Agricultural Co., St. Louis, Mo.—GENTLEMEN: We have pressed 400 tons with our "Improved Whitman's Hay Press" this season, in 18x22 press, in about two months' running. We have pressed from eight to fourteen tons a day in grass hay; from eight to ten tons a day with ease. We have pressed in grain hay eight tons in six hours, just to see what the press would do. In grain hay the bales run from 180 to 240 pounds. We have pressed 190 pounds with ten feeds, which the Dederick press cannot do, because their feed-box is not so large as ours. The bales made by our Whitman press are much smoother and more sightly than bales made by the Dederick press. We have pressed twenty bales an hour, averaging 150 pounds to the bale, in wild oats hay. We pressed hay this year upon the same ranch where the Dederick Over Circle press baled last year. Their bales weighed 85 to 125 pounds; our bales weighed 125 to 190 pounds. In testimony that the foregoing statement is true, the undersigned crew running the "Whitman Improved Perpetual Hay Press" belonging to Gregg Bros., El Cajon, San Diego county, Cal., have hereunto set our hands and seals the day and date first above written. BURTON MOUND,

A Seaside Hotel Resort at Santa Barbara.

IN SEEKING FOR A PLACE TO erect a large hotel to accommodate tourists and other guests, perhaps none can be found combining more attractions than the "Burton Mound." Situated at the foot of the long, gentle slope on which the city of Santa Barbara lies, the 28-acre tract called "Seaside Hotel Property" has the advantage of a mound, which comprises about three acres, rising above the surrounding lands to the height of twenty feet. This mound rises gradually, and is sufficiently level on top to admit of large buildings, with cottages surrounding. While in the city, it seems in the country. It is one tier of blocks from the busiest street and wharf, and runs down to tidewater, with a wide, smooth beach in front. No miasmatic swamps are near. The temperature is warm in winter and cool in summer. Temperature of ocean water varies but eight degrees in the whole year. Ocean bathing is practiced by many the whole year round. It holds in view the ocean, mountains, foothills, islands and beautiful valleys of Carpinteria and Montecito. The Old Mission Church is seen in the northwest, and the beautiful grounds and mansion of Mr. Dibblee on the high lands adjacent.

A spring of sulphur water bubbles up on one side of the mound, and another in which iron predominates springs from the other side, so that baths of these two, and of the ocean water as well, and baths of pure, cold, soft water may be had at trifling expense.

☞ This choice and desirable site for a seaside hotel is for sale. Inquiries may be made in person or by letter of any of the following stockholders or directors:

DR. J. B. SHAW,
MILO SAWYER,
FIRST NATIONAL BANK OF SANTA BARBARA.
THOMAS B. DIBBLEE,
BENJAMIN BURTON,
FRISSIUS & HERNSTER,
ESTATE OF COL. W. W. HOLLISTER,
Directors of Seaside Hotel Association of Santa Barbara.

BEAUTIFUL BURTON MOUND!

VERNONDALE!

☞ This place is situated four and one-half miles southeast of Los Angeles and about one mile from city limits. It is surrounded by attractive vineyards and orchards. Few towns in Southern California have more than one railroad, while Vernondale has the great advantage of three, while the building of the Central-avenue street-car line to Los Angeles seems assured. Church, parsonage, large schoolhouse, public hall and stores already built. Sale of lots begin

HYDE PARK!

Look where you will in the vicinity of the city of Los Angeles, in search either of lots or acre property, for charming homes, and the best judgments will be convinced at a glance as to the difficulty of finding a location for a town so beautiful, such pure and bracing air, and smooth, rich lands as characterizes Hyde Park. This splendid townsite is located on the line of the California Central, of the A., T. & S. F. system, which is to connect Los Angeles with the new harbor at La Ballona, and is distant 7½ miles from the center of the city; a midway town between the city and the harbor. Trains are to be running through the tract by July next, when great business activity all along the line will be the order of the day. Liberal-sized lots, 60x180 feet, fronting on sixty-foot avenues, are offered and being taken rapidly at $125 each; $40 cash, balance $10 per month, without interest. This price includes water piped to each lot and streets graded. Such terms give the present purchasers a good opportunity to make money in the rising values that must follow the effects of the harbor and railroad developments. Particularly desirable are the 5 and 10 acre villa lots surrounding the town. Conveyances leave the office at 1:30 p.m., to show parties the beautiful property.

WHAT "THEY" ARE WEARING.

Fresh Fashions from the Metropolis—An Era of Dude Neckwear.

[Special Correspondence.]

NEW YORK, June 3.

Hats! They never were so varied, so pretty nor so stylish as this season. Nearly all have high crowns, and, as every really observant woman knows, a hat without a high crown has no style about it. There is something about a high crown that gives its wearer an air. As a milliner of my acquaintance says: "A low crowned hat always reminds me of the horseradish women in markets." Trimming is put on high in front, in great masses directly above the face, without any regard for the rear whatever. Sometimes the height of it approaches caricature, yet the wearers seem serenely happy. Some of them are doubtless pleased at the knowledge that their hat is trimmed higher than any other. It is something to be above the multitude, if it is only in the matter of head wear. Shapes vary so that every woman can have something becoming and still be in fashion. The dear little sailors, as usual, have a good constituency. Fashions come and fashions go, but they hold on firm, and with good reason. They are becoming to almost every one, they are stylish, they are never flashy nor pretentious and they are appropriate for many occasions; yes, and they are invariably pretty.

And as for bonnets, those dear little trifles which New York ladies take to in preference to hats, or even shoes and stockings, if the choice had to be made, they are bewildering in beauty and shapes. And as for prices, they are down to nothing now. You wouldn't believe it, but you can walk on Sixth avenue and see in the windows charming, untrimmed straw bonnets, ranging all the way from $1.25 down through a 98, 50, 40, 25 and even 10 cent gradient; and I speak but the unadorned truth when I say that even the ten cent ones, when fluffed up with a little ribbon or what not, are good enough for a princess. In nothing will a little taste and ingenuity go so far as in the matter of head wear. And, oh! how cheap are pretty summer ribbons now. So cheap, that if one sees them and can't get them one's rest is disturbed.

In wraps jet leads off. But the inexperienced shopper must be careful. The good, imported ones cost like everything, and the cheap ones are delusions, which lose their glory the moment you get them home and examine them. Cheap, braided cloth, dingy lace and ragged bead fringe are their main characteristics. Some of the nimble fingered and ingenious make their own, paying from $6 to $20 per yard for their braided cloth. But I would urge all to be careful on this point. It is easy to spoil them, difficult to give them the proper finish. Even the gifted dressmaker cannot always do it—cannot do it at all, if she is not also a cloakmaker, which few are.

Most of the jet wraps have great long tabs in front—perfectly useless and often unsightly adjuncts. The smart shopper, if she buys one of that kind, cuts off the tabs. I will tell you why. They will make a girl of 16 look old. They have an old womanish air, and the air looks mostly in the tabs. Another "old" touch is the pointed piece of silk which forms the back of many of them. Leave that out if you don't want to be considered as belonging to the Methusaleh family. Let the whole garment be of jet, and see that it isn't poor jet, either.

Keep your hair dressed high, my fair friend, if you want to be in the front of the fashionable van, and stick it full of combs and fancy pins. Not too many at once, of course, but one now and another again—something to mark the coiffure, you know.

In the matter of veils color has it. They come in tulle, in Russian net, in dotted crepe lisse, in the most delicate grenadine, in all shades—lilac, heliotrope, scarlet, dark reds, blues, ecru, everything. Rose pink is the daintiest and most immensely becoming.

Summer fabrics are greatly in vogue. Batistes, sateens, ginghams—never were there such ginghams—and lovely colored linens abound. Made up with pretty ribbons, nothing is more appropriate for summer wear.

The fit of a dress is becoming more and more a matter of importance. Now that wraps are very small and often dispensed with, Broadway presents a vast panorama of snugly clad figures in the afternoon during the promenade hours.

All sorts of things are displayed for neckwear. In only one particular do all agree, and that is in height. Things that saw the ears and brace up the chin are preferred to everything of a more modest stature. It is, indeed, the era of dude neckwear for women. The collars of the dress are so altitudinous that a white collar has to be very courageous if it can climb above it and hold its place, and look over the battlements in peace. Numerous chemisettes are on sale and readily purchased. They help out with few toilets by making a change.

White gowns are, as usual, in demand. In lawns, laces and soft wools they tempt the purse and please the eye.

Parasols are ornate and varied. Lace covers can be bought and serve over many. The black and white striped ones are very stylish and need no cover. Black and white are in order in every part of the toilet this season.

NAOMI TRENT.

The Eiffel Tower.

Everybody has by this time read of the great tower of iron a thousand feet high, and to be the highest structure in the world, which it is proposed to be erected by M. Eiffel to adorn the grounds of the big Paris exposition of 1889. The amusing contentions as to what its effect will be magnetically and its artistic appearance are still fresh in mind. Some scientists, it will be remembered, claimed that so great a mass of iron would become a huge magnet and would demoralize everything built with nails for a long distance, and most Parisian artists and literary men hold that by dwarfing every other structure in Paris it will become a great blot artistically.

FOUNDATION OF THE EIFFEL TOWER.

But all the same, the work on the foundations is going on, and in due course of time (if we are rich enough to go to Paris) we may expect to see the huge tower's bulk raised above the earth, and then all the world will know which is right, Eiffel and his friends or the scholars and the artists.

A Cautious Forecast.

"Aunt Rachel, will the baby's hair be curly?"

"Why, chile! How ken I tell? When it ain't got a hah on its head. Maybe auburn, f' all I know! Be kahf'l, and keep yoh hand up to its back, honey."—Harper's Weekly.

We will come to the land where the olives grow
Wrote the tenderfoot to his friend;
Where the sun with a golden mouth can blow
Blue bubbles of grapes down a vineyard row!
Wrote the tenderfoot to his friend.

We are weary of work on this sunless plain,
Wrote the grasshopper-blighted man;
We are weary of work in the snow and the rain,
Where to labor is loss and, and to live is pain,
Wrote the grasshopper-blighted man.

We want lucider hills and intenser seas,
Wrote the Boston girl to her beau:
Wherever by symbols and bright degrees
Art, childlike, climbs to the dear Lord's knees,
Wrote the Boston girl to her beau.

Oh, for the skies that are softer and higher!
Wrote the one-lunged man to Dodge!
For the flowers that blaze, and the trees that aspire,
And the insects made of a song or a fire!
Wrote the one-lunged man to Dodge.

And oh for a pen to describe the same!
Sighs the writer in his room;
For a poet's tongue of baptismal flame
To call the tree or flower by its name,
Sighs the writer in his room.

Our pen is poor and our ink is pale,
As they were in the school-day rhymes;
But our love for the land will never fail,
And who buys our lots will never bewail
The investment of his dimes.

Special Announcement.

The first advance in the price of Ivanhoe lots was made June 1st, as per advertisement for several months. For various good reasons, some of the lots are left at the original prices for another month; but most of them have been advanced 20 to 50 per cent. Even at advanced prices it is the best property offered for the money anywhere around Los Angeles, and buyers should choose their lots before the next advance, which will be made in July. The sale of lots in May was larger than in any previous month, and the end of June will find most of the lots sold. All who see Ivanhoe agree that it is the best property for the least money that can be found. The water system and the dummy road will both be ready by July, and many houses will be built in the next two months. If you want a first-class, large lot, for a small sum of money, come at once. THE BEST PREMIUM OFFER!

By any Paper in the United States.

THE MOST PRACTICAL! THE MOST RELIABLE!

Everybody should have a copy of our "FAMILY PHYSICIAN."

This book contains 514 pages; is eight and one-half inches long, six inches wide and two inches thick. It is printed on extra heavy paper and is handsomely bound, with embossed cover and gilt-lettered back.

IT IS DIFFERENT FROM ALL OTHER WORKS OF THE KIND EVER PUBLISHED.

FIRST—It teaches those who have it how to tell what the matter is when some one gets sick. All similar books tell what to do—if you know what the disease is. THIS BOOK TELLS YOU HOW TO RECOGNIZE THE DISEASE, and then what to do for it. No other book published does this.

SECOND—When a person is really attacked by a dangerous disease, it enables you to know the fact, and in such cases its advice is, "Send for a competent physician at once." In all ordinary cases, such as can be cured without a doctor (and most of the ailments are of this kind, if only you could know them), it gives full directions for cure. The point is, that it teaches you to tell the difference between a dangerous and a trifling disease, and tells you when it is necessary to call a physician, and when it is not necessary to call a physician. No other book published does this.

THIRD—It gives separately, and in full, the treatment of each disease, the methods used by the different "schools of medicine," and in most cases the prescriptions are made by the most eminent men in their respective schools of practice. This makes the work special and valuable to the needs of every family, no matter what school of medicine they prefer—Allopathic, Homeopathic, Hydropathic, Eclectic or Herbal. NO OTHER BOOK PUBLISHED DOES THIS.

WE WILL SHOW YOU HOW IT DOES THIS.

If you will call and see us.

Please read these indorsements of distinguished physicians which were sent to the publishers of this grand work:

Having examined the advance sheets of the work entitled "Our Family Physician," I can say that I find it accurate in its descriptions of diseases and reliable in the therapeutical department.

N. F. COOKE, M.D.,
Professor of theory and practice, Hahnemann Medical College.

I hereby certify that I have examined a work entitled "Our Family Physician," and find it to be correct in its diagnosis, and, in my opinion, worthy of the confidence of the public.

H. S. HAHN, M.D.

I have examined the advance sheets of "Our Family Physician." It gives me pleasure to recommend the work as correct in its mode of treatment of diseases, and it deserves wide circulation.

J. F. COOKE, M.D.,
Professor in Burnett's Medical College, Cincinnati.

After examining the publication "Our Family Physician," I can fully indorse the opinions expressed of its merits by the above gentlemen.

R. A. GUNN, M.D.,
Professor of the Burnett Medical College.

The book contains a valuable chapter of symptoms, which will aid materially in diagnosing diseases, and the proper remedies are given for Allopathic, Homeopathic, Eclectic, Hydropathic and Herbal.

Every family should have a guide to health to assist the family doctor. It is not intended to take the place of the doctor in every instance, but to help you do everything possible in his absence.

—:TO OUR OLD SUBSCRIBERS:—

It is customary with newspapers to give premiums to new subscribers only; but the publishers of the MIRROR mean to reverse this old rule; they intend to do as well, at least, by their old subscribers—those who have stood by the paper in years past, and paid their money for it "right straight along." We propose to show our appreciation of these friends in a substantial manner; and as the premium to be offered is expensive, and as our express object in offering it is to increase our list of subscribers, we will ask every old subscriber who may renew his subscription, thus receiving the valuable premium, to constitute himself a missionary, and aid us in securing at least two new subscribers.

and mutual love of Christ and His church, for the Solomon spoken of here is not the earthly Solomon. "Behold, a greater than Solomon is here," even the Lord Jesus Himself, whilst the bride, in all her loveliness, is the church, which Christ has purchased with His own blood. And this sacred and imperishable union between Christ and His bride is very strikingly expressed in these suggestive words of the text—words which are the grateful, admiring, delighted testimony of the church—proclaiming the grace and goodness of her Lord, who has brought her into the banqueting house, and whose banner over her is love.

This banquet symbolizes primarily those several gospel blessings that are enjoyed by all the believing members of Christ's church. But as this sacrament of the Lord's Supper is the keystone of all gospel rite and ceremony, we may legitimately use these words of the Bible as applicable to the special circumstances under which we are now assembled, each of us saying that Christ has brought us into his banqueting house.

First—And as to the significance of this banquet, it is above and beyond everything else as simple and tender memorial. "Do this in remembrance of me," said our Lord.

Second—This banquet also signifies the consecration of all that we love to our Lord's service. This is the specific meaning of sacrament, from sacramentum, which signified the old Roman soldiers' oath of allegiance to Cæsar.

Third—Then we may look upon this sacramental feast as a confessional. For if the Protestant Church has one place more than another that deserves to be so designated it is the communion table, for we come here saying, "God be merciful to us sinners."

Fourth—One other item involved in this banquet is the fellowship of believers.

It is emphatically a communion occasion, not only communion with Christ, but with each other. "For we being many are one bread and one body, and we are all partakers of that one bread."

And now for the significance of the banner. In the olden times when a prince made a banquet to his friends, he invariably hung up his flag in the most conspicuous part of the festal hall, and so, as Christ spreads this banquet for us today, His banner over us is love.

First—And this banner is a symbol of protection. It is our pride and glory, as a nation, that our country's flag always affords refuge to every one over whom it flies; for, go where we will, to the ends of the earth, and we find this flag respected—carrying with it, as it does, the sovereignty and power of a mighty nation.

Second—Then Christ's banner symbolizes aggressive warfare. When Cæsar first undertook the conquest of Britain the appearance of the foe was so formidable as to deter him from landing, until the standard-bearer of the Tenth Legion jumped out of his boat and made for the shore, and then all the troops went after their ensign.

Third—And then this banner of Christ is calculated to inspire loyalty and devotion.

Fourth—And finally it is a banner of love. If we could read the true meaning of other banners we would often find inscribed on them such words as bloodshed, violence, hate, murder, oppression. But on Christ's banner we see only love, for, in spreading His cause, He does so not by fierceness and severity, but by His tenderness. As the old prophet says, "He hath loved my soul out of the pit," and "His gentleness hath made me great."

CHURCH OF CHRIST.

The Dangers of Pride, Wealth and Idleness to Society.

At the Christian Church, on Temple street, yesterday morning, Rev. T. D. Garvin took for his text the following, found in Romans, xi, 22: "Behold, therefore, the goodness and severity of God; on them which fell severity; but toward thee goodness, if thou continue in His goodness; otherwise thou also shalt be cut off."

These words were spoken to a people composed of Jews and Gentiles. In those days the Jews were an exclusive class and thought themselves far above the Gentiles in every respect. The apostles here intended to show that God is good and gracious, long-suffering and merciful, but when His patience and mercy are exhausted, His ways are severe. God never gives to any man more than he can bear, and every man will be judged by his opportunities and the use he has made of them. God loads us with mercies, but they become curses when abused.

In this chapter Abraham is represented as an olive tree, of whom the Jews were branches. But God, because of their unbelief, broke off their branches, and grafted in wild olives, which were the Gentiles. And Paul warns them that if God cut off the natural branches because of their abuse of His goodness, to take heed that they, the grafted branches, be not cut off also. Abraham and the cities of Sodom and Gommorah were examples of the use and abuse of God's bounties. The first, a just and upright man, fearing God and doing good to his fellow-men. The second, full of debauchery, lust, licentiousness, wickedness and all manner of abominations. Yet both were contemporary. Both drank from the same fountain of knowledge, only 400 years before. Abraham was prospered; the Sodomites and people of Gommorah were blotted from the face of the earth.

There can be no mistake. By the past the future must be judged. History will repeat itself. Those of Sodom and Gomorrah had "pride, fullness of bread and plenty of idleness." It destroyed them, and will destroy any people who attain to the same position. If they had possessed humility, with wealth and idleness, they would have employed the latter in doing good to the world—in helping the needy, in doing deeds of love to the distressed, in sympathy for the suffering, in using, and not abusing, the gifts of God, and so have been a blessing to the world. They did none of this, but rather indulged their own selfish desires and appetites to their own destruction. So it is in society today. The combination of these will sooner or later undermine and wreck the best of men. The increase of pride, wealth and idleness hangs like a millstone upon the neck of true progress, and the noblest advancement of society and humanity in this country. The best classes of our society are the busy ones, and the idlers are its curse. As an example take the young lady who has nothing to do but amuse herself, who makes herself useful neither to mother, father, brother, nor the community, but spends her time all the long day in reading an interesting (to her) book of love, riches and air castles, and of what account is she for the duties of a woman, a wife and a mother?

Take the young man whose father does not need his services, who has nothing to do except to comb his hair, brush his clothes, and swing a dudish cane through his youthful days, while others pay his expenses, and how worthless he is for the duties of a man, for a husband, or a father. The hope of society is in the industrious classes of our people. Better, far better, to be born so poor that shoes are for many summers unknown to childish feet, and acquire habits of industry, than to be heir to pride, wealth and idleness.

We may abuse God's goodness. In very few, if any, other parts of the country has God put so many blessings to the square foot as in California. The opportunities for comfort, ease, luxury and the acquiring of wealth are here the greatest, and we, all of us, fathers, mothers, sons and daughters, are prone to ruin ourselves, if we do not guard our ways, because of this; because we give too much attention to the getting of money and not enough to better things. Let us be careful that, like the sack on the horse going to mill, we are equally balanced, lest we fall off the wrong side of the horse into the mud. To make money for right uses is honorable and praiseworthy, but forget not to spend it wisely, in educating rightly the young, in spreading the gospel of God, in doing good to the needy and suffering all around you—and it is well. But when a man runs to building fine houses, to making a grand display, to furnishing rich turnouts and lavishly-dressed and idle children; when he looks down upon those poorer than he by reason of misfortune, honesty or less ability than is to make money, he will find, as surely as God cannot lie, that in the end he is on the wrong road and his blessings will prove curses. When the whirlwind of excitement takes men out the natural channels of business and trade into the fields of stocks and speculations, the reaction comes sooner or later; but if we guard aright our ways and our principles, the collapse will not leave us as it will many thousands, stranded and ruined in the wreck. The goodness of God is great, but so also is His severity on those that fall.

CHILDREN'S SERVICE.

A "Picture Talk" at the Congregational Church.

The First Congregational Church was well filled by children yesterday morning, it being the day set for the little ones' special services. There was also quite a sprinkling of older people when Rev. Dr. Case, late of Colorado, but now of East Los Angeles, took the pulpit. The reverend gentlemen announced that his remarks would be made specially for the children, and for that reason he would illustrate his discourse as he proceeded. He was armed with a large blackboard, and before he had talked five minutes every child in the room was thoroughly interested, and they followed him with rapt attention to the end. He went back to the beginning of the creation of man, and worked down through the various ages of Christianity until he reached Los Angeles. He gave a thorough history of the Christian religion, and made his doctrine so simple that even the youngest child could understand. There were quite a number of Sabbath-school teachers present, and his lessons will prove of great benefit to them, as he opened up a new field and gave them many new ideas as to the manner of teaching children.

GOSPEL TEMPERANCE.

A Meeting in the Salvation Army Tent Yesterday.

The ladies of the W. C. T. U., being unable to find any hall in the city the rent of which is not beyond their means for their Sunday temperance meetings, held one yesterday afternoon in the Salvation tent, corner of Temple and Fort streets. There was a very good audience present. Mrs. More presided. Some songs were sung, and some prayers made, the latter being ornamented by interjaculatory "amens" from the salvation brethren present. A lady then read a scripture lesson, and indulged in a talk of half an hour's duration, in an earnest, determined voice, during which she related incidents that had come under her observation when men had suddenly broken off bad habits through the help of God and of others, who had been punished for refusing to reform. Rev. Mr. Hovey then made a short address, in which the evils of intemperance were set forth, and men were urged to break off from their evil ways. The meeting then adjourned.

MUSIC.

Its Use in Worship—Praise Service at the Baptist Church.

The First Baptist Church, corner Fort and Sixth streets, was filled last evening by those gathered to listen and take part in the praise service of the hour. Rev. P. W. Dorsey read a Scripture lesson from the Psalms, and made a few interesting remarks concerning the use of music in religious assemblies. In ancient times music had a much more prominent place in worship than at the present time. Worship really consisted of thanksgiving, praise and prayer. We are a speech-making people, and hence have come to look upon the sermon as the principal part of religious service.

In the temple service music was largely employed. The singers were arranged in raised seats, or galleries, along each side of the house, with their instruments, and engaged in responsive singing back and forth. Hence it is that many of the Psalms are written in couplets.

Music was never invented. It is as natural to man as speech, though instruments have been invented to give it voice. Music in some form has existed from earliest history and is, and always has been, a great power, elevating the souls of men. Solomon used it in the temple; David with his flocks. Preachers have even put their sermons in rhyme and had them sung, and Luther accomplished an immense work in the reformation by his song-writing. Goethe says that the use of music is indispensable to complete culture. In this democratic age and country, we are not inclined to the ascription of praise, but the rendering of homage to God by thanksgiving and song is the highest foundation of the human soul.

A male choir, composed of Messrs. Vigneron, Williams and Shaw, tenors, Messrs. Bristol, Howard and Weber, bassos, with Mrs. Ogilvie at the organ and Miss Ryder at the piano, assisted in the rendition of the following programme:

Baritone Solo, "Cast Thy Bread Upon the Waters" (Roeckel)—H. R. Maybin.
Hymn, "Worthy is the Lamb"—Male chorus.

TRINITY M. E. CHURCH.

Sermon by Rev. R. H. Parker, of Santa Ana.

"Jesus answered and said unto him, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God."—St. John, iii, 3. Not to pass through that oft-repeated history of man's fall, which, to use Milton's language, "brought death into our world, and all our woe, with loss of Eden," I think it has gotten to be a well-conceded fact that man as we now see him is not as God created him. That since God put the finishing touch on the primal man and pronounced him very good, a fearful change has taken place that has disturbed the sweet communion that was intended to exist (and did exist) between man and his Creator.

I hardly think this congregation needs any labored argument to prove that the first man in ruins has been perpetuating himself, and that by reason of it we come into this world with sin in our very blood—"sprung from the man whose guilty fall corrupts the race and taints us all." If you doubt the Bible account of man's fall—and its consequences—you have only to open your eyes and take it in until your hearts are sick of it. Behold a world in open revolt against Almighty God today. See society upturned to her very foundations, and when she would seek to recover her equilibrium and bring peace to herself, see her trying to go all around God and find out some method that hasn't got God in it. To go no further, see the fatal tendency to put God and His Word out of your systems of education, and strike from your calendar the one day in seven that He has set apart supremely for Himself. Do you want any more evidences of depravity than that? But to come to the individual conscience, see guilty man hiding himself as he did 6000 years ago from the voice of God. The center of his repose gone; filled with a thousand yearnings, and yet seeking everything but God to satisfy them; every bias of his unconverted heart leading right away from God, and God pursuing him and pleading for reconciliation. Can you look upon such a picture as this and doubt that there is something wrong, and that the unregenerate man is abnormal and not as God originally created him? What unregenerate heart in this congregation today can say: "I have rest. No sense of God's disapprobation is upon me. No dread of death or judgment harasses me. No looking for of wrath or fiery indignation appears anywhere in the field of my vision to harrow up my soul. I can lay my hand upon my heart and say 'Welcome' to them all?" Ah! my friend, does not the shrinking of thy heart and the speechlessness of thy lips—under such questions as this—betray the fatal wrong we have mentioned? And it is upon the presumption that the present foundations of the individual and society are all wrong and out of course that Jesus Christ comes and proposes to set them right again, and my text contains the sovereign remedy—"Ye must be born again."

There is a famous clock in Germany called the Strasburg clock, of mammoth size and wonderful mechanism. They tell us whenever any part of its machinery becomes disordered, no hand except the original inventor can ever set it right again. So with this wondrous mechanism of the human soul; an enemy has tried with its machinery and ruined its adjustments, so that it no longer responds to the touch of the divine hand as it formerly did, and He who made it, and who alone knows what it needs, has come, bringing a plan by which to set it right again, and here it is in my text: "Ye must be born again."

The picture which the Bible gives us of man in his natural state is a very sad one. It represents him as dead to God, as hampered by a stronger paralysis of soul, so that, without divine help, he cannot respond to God; that he has a spiritual nature, but its centers are wrong, and hence its motions are wrong, and, as far as his connections with God are concerned, he is dead, and experience universal echoes back this Bible truth—dead! Now, the question is how to start the pulse of this soul dead to God, and set the currents of spiritual life in motion, the fountain of their life, and as their highest realization of all that is good. In answer to this question, man will give you one solution of the question, and God quite another.

To tell you how the divine energy can move on a dead soul and make it is not the business of the pulpit. As there is a mystery about natural life that has baffled all the efforts of science, so there is a mystery about this new birth that puts a hush on our lips and fills us with sacred awe, and instead of trying to explain it I would stand with uncovered head in the presence of this dread mystery and say, "It is God, who works according to His own marvelous plans. Let the whole earth keep silence before Him. But while we may not explain this sublime mystery, we may give you some of its phenomena by which you may know it. Like all other life, its coming is sudden—as it were in the twinkling of an eye. There is a nice, critical, well-defined point, where the soul receives this divine quickening and consciously feels for the first time the throb of a new and immortal life. There may be experiences where, for want of an intense consciousness of its own experiences, the operation may seem to have been gradual, but in matter of fact it was wrought in a moment, if it was wrought at all. So the Word of God affirms, and so the universal experience echoes. And let it be understood the same voice that speaks this dead soul into life, is heard with an articulation just as distinct, announcing the remission of all its past sins and in order of time, there is not a moment of interval between the pardon of sin and the regeneration of the heart, between this work done for the man and this work done in the man. As to the genuineness of this work, there can be no possible mistake. To the man's own heart it brings a spiritual exhilaration, a thrill of sacred joy, that is simply unspeakable. It is as though a powerful battery, charged with divine influences, had poured all its sacred currents into that soul. It is as though some electric storm had swept through its atmosphere, burning up all the poisonous exhalations of sin and left it enswathed with an atmosphere whose every inspiration was a delicious joy, a perpetual delight. Not only so, but the man feels himself lifted, as it were, out of himself and girded with a new set of faculties, whereby he is able to assert his mastery over sin and all opposing forces. . . .

Ah! but you say all this is a mystery to me. So it is, my friend; but the very fact of its mystery is only the stronger proof of its divinity. In a company of literary gentlemen, Daniel Webster was asked if he could comprehend how Jesus Christ could be both God and man. "No, sir," he replied, and added: "I should be ashamed to acknowledge Him as my Savior if I could comprehend Him. If I could comprehend Him, He could be no greater than myself. Such is my sense of sin, and consciousness of my inability to save myself, that I feel I need a superhuman Savior—one so great and glorious that I cannot comprehend Him." So I say of this new birth: the very fact that you cannot understand it ought to commend it to you, as the conception of an eternal mind, whose province it is to work and plan far beyond the margin of all human conception.

People's Store Specials.

We open the week with a list of specialties that eclipse all our previous efforts. We have been extraordinarily busy during the past week, and will present such specialties as will outdo our last week's business.

We will first mention as special today a line of all-silk blocked sash ribbons at 25c. a yard. These goods were originally manufactured to be sold at 65c. a yard. We have resolved to sell today, as long as they last, at 25c. a yard. On the same counter we have 500 pieces of all-silk ribbons, an inch and a half wide, at 5c. a yard, plain and picot edge and comprising in colors, red, blue, pink and cream. This ribbon has never been sold for less than 15c. a yard.

Today we propose to give the boys a chance. We have placed on exhibition in our window a line of boys' knee pants which will be sold, today only, at 35c. No more than two pairs to any one customer; not the price of material; our regular price for these goods is 75c.

Our domestic department will offer as special today a line of India striped lawns at 12½c. a yard. As handsome a line cannot be found anywhere else for less than 20c. a yard.

Extra special today is a line of plaid dress ginghams at 5c.; goods sold at 10c.

In order to prepare yourself for the Fourth of July, we offer a line of solid colored nuns' veiling in shades of pink, blue, cream, heliotrope, lilac, nell and other handsome colors, at 15c. We have, in connection with the above, placed upon our button counter a line of the latest styles of cat's eye and Roman pearl buttons to match all the above shades. They will be on special sale today.

On our fancy goods counter we will place on sale lace pillow-shams, 12½c each; worth 50c. a pair.

On our notion counter we will place on sale a line of ladies' canvas belts at 10c. each; worth 25c.

In our lace department we offer 9-inch wide American lace at 10c a yard; worth 25c.

A line of ladies' jersey mitts, 25c.
A line of men's straw hats, 44c. each.
A line of infants' French kid button shoes, 75c.
A line of men's gauze undershirts, 25c. each.
A line of all-cloth painted fans, 2½c. each.

WHO IS THE LUCKY MAN?

THIS MEANS YOU.

Here is a Little Speculation that will discount anything in the Market.

Eighty-five acres of choice land, suitable for the successful growing of strawberries of the finest kind, as well as any small fruit or vegetables, in the town of Compton, less than one-half mile from the railroad depot, has been subdivided into sixteen tracts, of which fifteen contain five acres each and one ten acres; 65 acres of it in alfalfa. One of the five-acre tracts has a $2500 house, $500 barn, and the finest artesian well in the land, and is easily worth $4500.

Any one of the five-acre tracts can be so planted as to support any man and his family, and do it well.

These sixteen tracts will be distributed among the sixteen lucky purchasers of the sixteen tickets, now for sale.

Every purchaser gets more than the worth of his money, and, besides, there are

TWO GRAND PRIZES!

FIRST PRIZE—The tract with the house, barn and well, worth $4500.

SECOND PRIZE—The ten-acre lot, worth $2000.

Price of each chance, only $1000.

TERMS—$100 down, $400 on day of drawing, and $500 on March 1, 1888.

CATARRH!

THROAT DISEASES, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA,

CONSUMPTION,

Together with diseases of the EYE, EAR AND HEART,

Successfully treated by

M. HILTON WILLIAMS, M.D.,

M. C. P. S. O.,

No. 275 North Main Street,

A few doors south of the new postoffice, Los Angeles, Cal.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED.

This has been demonstrated in thousands of cases treated by

DR. WILLIAMS,

With his new system of Medicated Inhalations combined with proper constitutional remedies for the liver, stomach, blood, etc.

Probably no system of practice ever adopted has been so universally successful as that introduced by Dr. Williams for the cure of Catarrh, Throat Diseases, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

CATARRH.

Catarrh is often regarded by the patient as a cold in the head, and he often expresses his astonishment at his remarkable tendency to contract a fresh cold; indeed, he declares that he is scarcely free from one cold before he takes another, and yet he is always exceedingly careful; it is also a matter of surprise to him that the cold always seems to settle in the head and throat.

At times many of the symptoms of Catarrh may seem to abate, and the patient is led to hope that the disease is about to wear off; but another class of symptoms soon appears, and he learns to his horror that instead of recovery from the disease, it is somewhat changed in its character and has extended to the throat. A sense of weariness is sometimes felt in reading, speaking or singing, hoarseness at times occurs, a sensation of dryness is felt in the throat, or it appears that some foreign substance, as, for instance, a hair, obstructed the throat; there becomes a sense of languor and fatigue, the breath lessens upon a little exertion, a short, hacking cough, a peculiar sound in clearing the throat, a feeling as though there was not room enough in the chest to breathe; these and other symptoms occur after the disease has made considerable progress. Then it is a time when consumption is about to begin its dreadful work. Up to this time the progress of the disease may have been slow, and the patient may, in expressing his confident hope that it will "wear off," declare that he has had the catarrh for years, and has not seemed to become much worse, and trusts he will "by-and-by" recover. But this delusion is the grand error which has peopled our cemeteries with consumptive forms, as all forms of catarrh end finally in consumption.

Inhalations are applicable in all diseases of the respiratory organs, but must be prepared for each individual case as they severally require.

By the employment of proper inhalation in the form of medicated vapor (not steam or spray) we are able to produce immediate and direct action upon the diseased surface in the pharynx and nasal passages, for air will find its way into the most remote and intricate cavities, where it is utterly impossible to make fluid applications. By these means every case can be cured.

Persons desiring treatment by this system of practice can use the remedies at home as well as at our office, and which will cause no inconvenience or hindrance to business whatever.

I have seen so many of these cases cured that I do not consider any case hopeless unless both lungs are seriously involved. Even then the inhalations aid us in dissolving the mucus and in contracting and healing the cavities, which nothing else can do with the same success.

The very best references from those already cured.

CONSULTATION FREE.

Those who desire to consult with me in regard to their cases had better call at the office for consultation and examination, but if impossible to do so can write for a copy of my Medical Treatise, containing a list of questions. Address,
